friends with whom we intertwine . . .

The time has finally arrived, the time for which we all have strived.
Fifty years have gone by.
Now, how time does fly.
It's time to reunite our peers
And celebrate with many cheers
Opened in the year of 1934
We celebrate it's Golden Anniversary in the year of 1984.
As I reflect on all of Coventry
High School's alumni,
In the future, I see !!

Cindy Holt

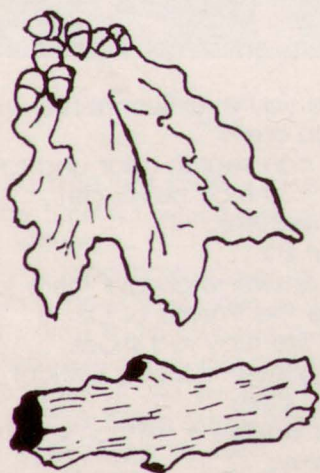

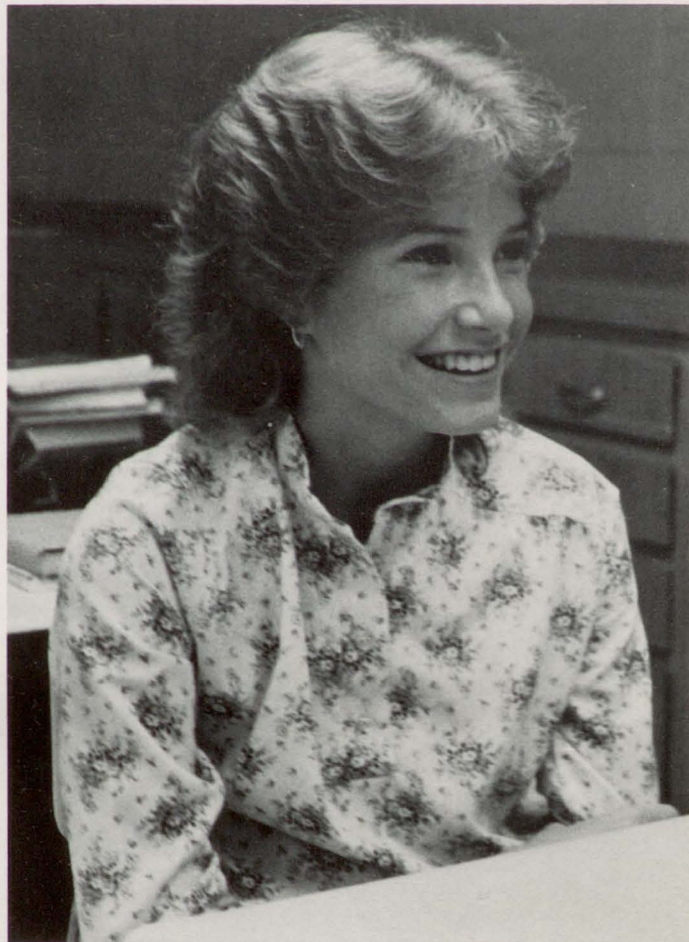

The joys of love and laughter shared . . .

Have you ever wondered who you are?
You can search near and far
And you may never get anywhere,
but still ...
The answer is always there just like the Wizard of Oz
And the ruby red shoes,
The answer is there, without any clues.
After a while it will come right away,
And then you'll find that day
When you'll say "I see ..."
"The Answer can only come from Inside of thee!"

Barbara Carroll

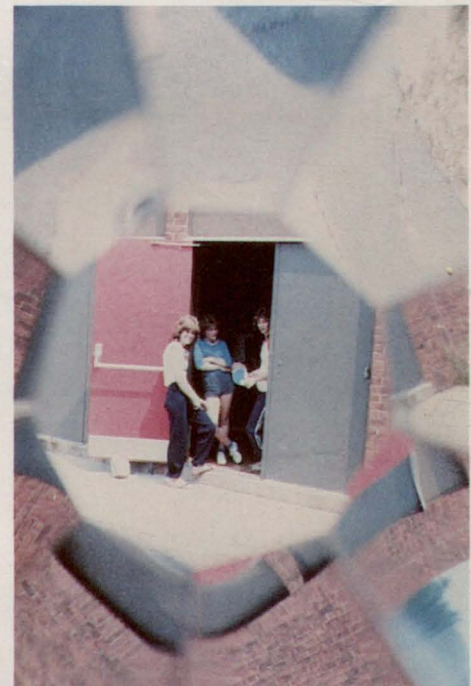

treasuring friends we know who cared ...

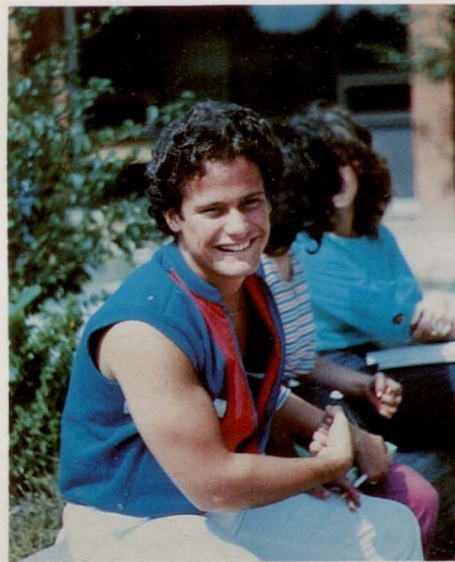

Plotting a path for those behind . . .

Wondering what they too will find . . .

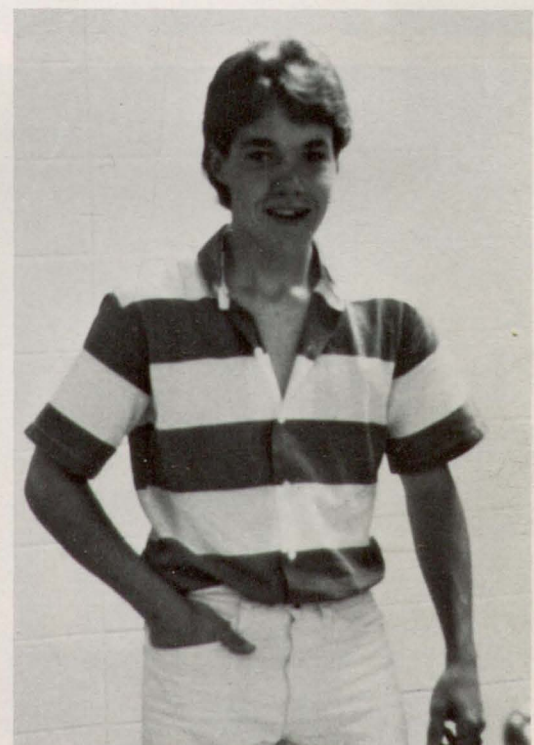

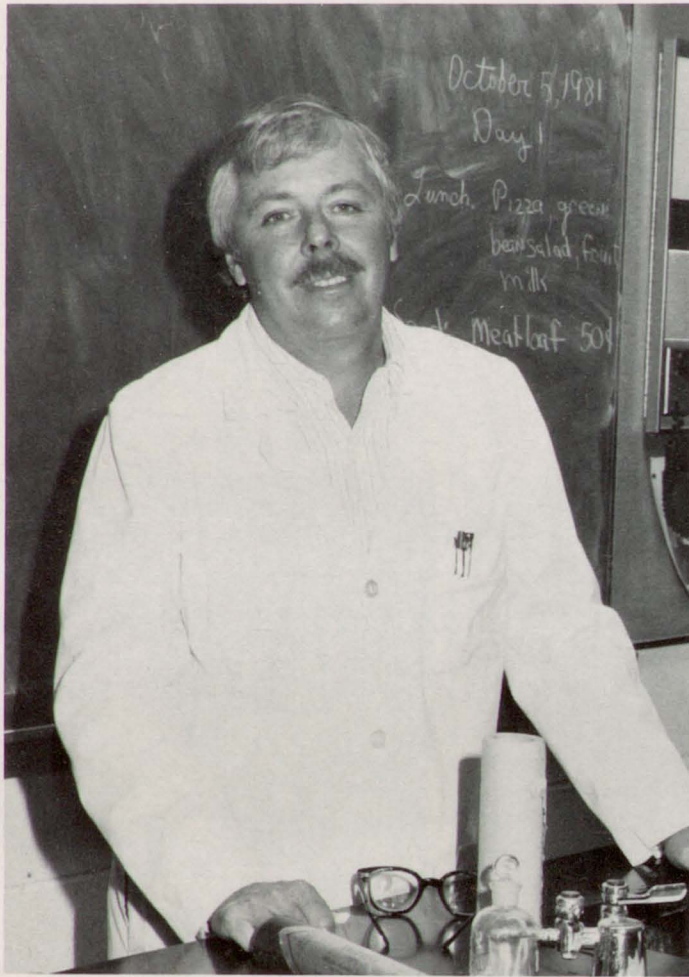

Sports and games that light our way . . .

LET ME TAKE MY TIME
 Let me take the time to smell the flowers, that grow by the side of the road.
 Let me take time to lend a hand that will lighten another's heavy load
 Let me take time to share my thoughts, with those who are dear to me,
 And let me take time to see what I am,
 and strive for the best I can be!

Lori Byrnes

Memories of both work and play . . .

Doorway to the future open wide . . .

THE WAY OF THE WHITE DOVE

*When all things living under the sun
 At last unite and become one,
 When discrimination is but a word,
 And the ugly voice of prejudice cannot be heard;
 Then may we live in peace and with hope,
 And with our problems we shall cope,
 And the world will be a wonderful place to live,
 If only a try at it we would give.
 But this may never be the way of the white dove,
 For in our society, not many care enough to LOVE.*

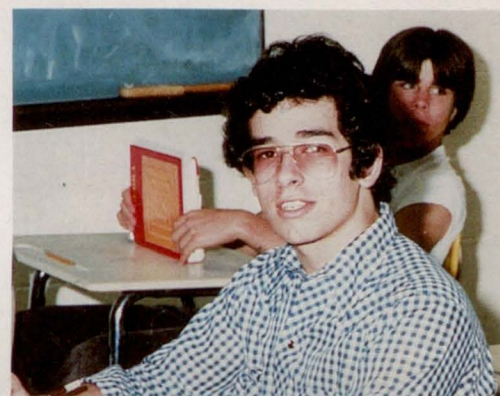

Cristin Rothfuss

Teachers and administrators our faithful guides . . .

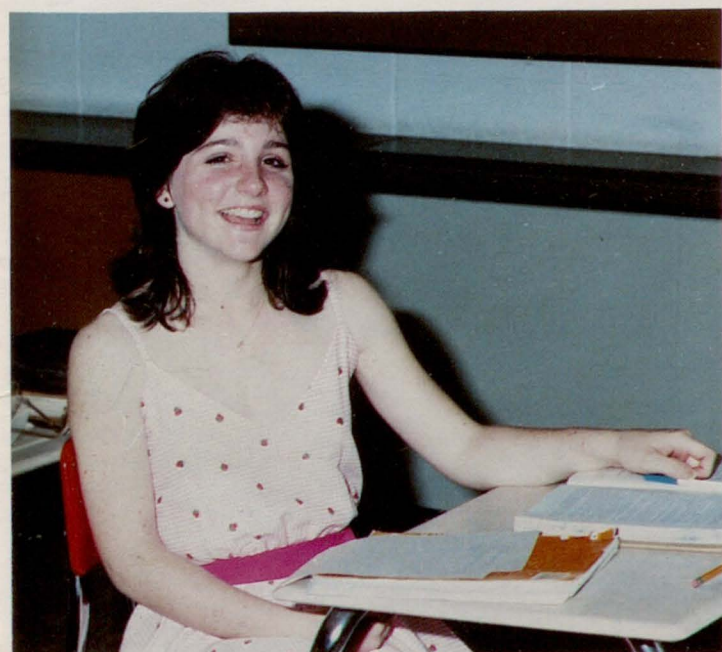

I am in my last year of school and have learned an important rule. Though I've come to the end, I'm coming around another bend. High school is going - college is coming. Each day I rise, new ideas and goals arise. Though the end will always come and it seems as though everything is finished, the beginning will always come and the end will be relinquished.

Paula LaMontagne

Experiences — both good and bad . . .

ADVICE FOR THE FUTURE

Accept the challenge before you, whatever it may be. Make something of yourself, something for the world to see. Have confidence in what you do, give it your best try. If determination is in your heart, dreams will never die. Do not be hindered by defeat. Pick yourself up and continue to strive. Someday accomplishment will come and you will know you're alive.

Happy times as well as sad . . .

The time draws near for us to part . . .

TIME

There is never enough time to do the things I want to do.
Each day I grow older
Missing the true meaning of life,
Doing what I have been doing day after day
Nothing different, and nothing new.
I'm growing older now and yet I still haven't seen the world.
Where has time gone?
Time has passed so quickly.
"But where has it gone?" I ask.
There is never enough time to do what I want to do.
I need more time, yet, I have no more!

Shirley Messier

A treasure chest of memories stored in our hearts.

The Best And More

MEMORIES

These years have been the best of times,
Memories I will never forget.
Although school was hard and life was confusing.
I'm really glad we met.
Remember the cramming,
remember the tears,
Remember the times we had.
But most of all remember our friendships
And the love that was never said.
Though, after all these years,
we must part
Please don't ever forget
I love you!
You'll always have a place next to my heart.

The Class Of '84

Graduation is a sign to me that we are all getting older. It leaves me with a feeling of great accomplishment; a sense of triumph. For thirteen years the Class of 1984 has grown and developed together, watching our childhood years pass by. We shared our dreams and sorrows. We have grown close, and made many friends. Eventually, we will all go our separate ways even though we promise never to lose touch with our friends!

We should think of graduation, not as an end to a way of life, which we have always known, but as a new beginning for ourselves. The future will be another chance for us to shine and become better.

Julie Kokolsky

We, the 50th Class of Coventry High School, in reflecting upon our last four years, have much to be grateful for. We have shared experiences and have established roots which will nurture us for the rest of our lives. Drawing upon these years, we have memories and hopes which will strengthen our progress.

Our quality of education has placed us with the best! How fortunate we are that our teachers have given us the knowledge, courage and understanding to go forth with confidence. Friends, sports, social activities, and clubs are something we will always treasure. They are a part of our lives that can never be stolen. We have enjoyed the pleasures of youth to the fullest.

We leave Coventry High School and each other with mixed emotions, however, we must grow, separate, and become mature adults and explore the challenges of the world. We have been taught to do justice to our society. Our foundation is there and we have the courage to go forward to change what we can, accept what we cannot, and have the wisdom to know the difference.

I wish a bright and prosperous future to all my classmates. Thank you for making these past four years a memorable and fulfilling experience. As Thomas Jefferson said: "Let us go forth, as we are the future leaders of this country and proclaim our righteousness and make a mark in history."

Love and Happiness Always
MELISSA GOUGH
 Class President

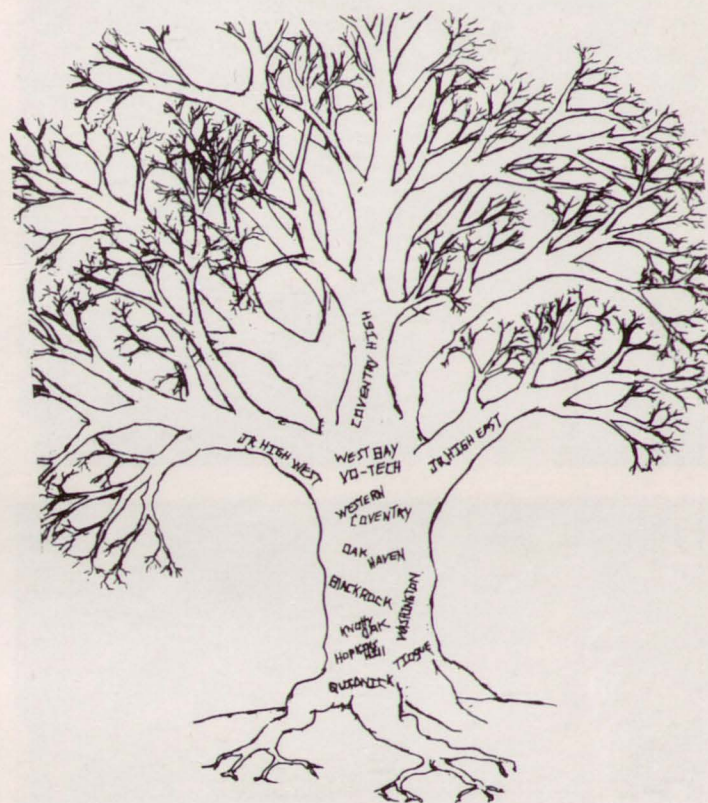

As I look back over the years that I have been advisor to the Senior Class, I thank God that He gives wisdom to each class to choose leaders who set an example to their classmates and who make wise decisions on their behalf. Each class has a personality of its own and I feel privileged to have worked with more than one-third of the classes that ever graduated from Coventry High School. In this 50th Anniversary Year, I want to say that I am proud to be a part of the history of Coventry High School. My life - as well as that of my son and daughter and my late husband - has been immeasurably enriched by the thousands of students and staff with whom I share that history. God grant that all graduates and staff members - past, present, and future - may feel, as I do, that they have contributed something to Coventry High School; but, more importantly that Coventry High School has given much to them.

Sincerely,
JOAN R. ROBERTSON
 Class Advisor

History Of The Class Of 1984

50th Graduating Class

We entered Coventry High School as bewildered and frightened freshman. At first we were lost in this new environment, we felt very much out of place. But, it didn't take us long to become a part of Coventry High. We started off by electing Lori Byrnes as our Class President with Mrs. Cox as our advisor. The Class of '84 got into the swing of things by participating in such activities as Homecoming and School Spirit Week. We enjoyed our first formal dance and crowned Melissa Gough as our Freshman Prom Queen. Before we knew it, our Freshman year was coming to a close. The Class of 1984 had arrived!!!!

We then entered Coventry High School as confident sophomores. We elected Eileen Moss as our class president and turned to Mrs. Glawson, our class advisor when we needed a helping hand. We were all very busy with the various fundraisers needed to increase our treasury. As the months passed, we grew closer and closer to the end of another year. Summer was here and our sophomore year came to a close.

As Juniors, we again chose Lori Byrnes as our class president and Mrs. Cyr was to guide us through the year. Excitement and anticipation rose as we ordered our class rings, which we received before Christmas. As the spring months approached, so did our Junior Prom.

The enchanting evening of April 29 brought us a night of enthusiasm at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet. We danced to the music provided by Mirage and watched Kim Wilcox being crowned as our Junior Prom Queen. Before we knew it, we had to begin work on Class Day ceremonies. On Class Day we honored seniors and officially toured our rings around and became SENIORS!!!!

Our Senior year finally arrived, and we elected Melissa Gough as our president and Mrs. Robertson was to help us with our final year. We started the year off with an exciting Homecoming Week and elected Dave Padula and Kim Wilcox as king and queen. Our senior year flew by and much to our surprise it was almost time for the Senior Ball. May 4th was an important evening for the Class of 1984, for it was one of our final evenings together.

Days later we were honored by the Juniors during Class Day Festivities. As June 9th came closer our anxiety also grew. Finally June 9th arrived and graduation ceremonies proceeded in an admirable fashion. We finally made it! The Class of '84 had left it's mark on Coventry High School, Now it is our turn to go our separate ways and explore the world. GOOD LUCK ALWAYS!!!!

As the week of April 29th drew to a close, we JUNIORS were not primarily concerned with gowns and tuxedos, as is customarily the case when a PROM is only a few days away. Because heavy rains had swollen rivers and streams, we feared that our prom site, Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet, was now Rhodes-in-the-Pawtuxet.

Fortunately the river receded by the time Friday, April 29th arrived, and we could again tend to prom festivities. Couples arrived at 6:30 PM to have their pictures taken and to walk through the receiving line. After a dinner of turkey, potatoes and candied carrots, tuxedo jackets and bow ties and high-heeled pumps were discarded as couples crowded the dance floor to dance to the music of Mirage.

The highlight of the evening came when Kim Wilcox was crowned queen and couples danced to the theme song Truly. It was a night to remember.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Class

The underclassmen are the foundation and the future of Coventry High School. Each class has a special role to fill and does it well.

The Juniors are the future leaders. Their year revolves around purchasing class rings, planning and attending the prom and preparing for that day in the spring, Class Day, when the gavel of authority will pass to them and they become the new Senior Class.

The Sophomores give the impression that they know everything. They have broken out of their shell and involve themselves in all types of sports and extra-circiclar activities. They tingle with excitement and anticipation. They are one year away from being Juniors. Quite often they put the future before the present. Many stumble and fall. The year of the sophomore is the most difficult of all.

The Freshmen often feel ignored and their ideas and suggestions are pushed aside as immature. Being a Freshman can be frustrating and often they feel left out and alone. By mid-year, they have adjusted to their role. For Freshmen are truly the foundation of the school.

Remember, the Class of '84 were once Freshmen too!

The Art Of Sleeping In A Classroom

Some persons may disagree with my calling sleeping in a classroom an art, but, as there are always people who will perpetually oppose any statement made, I shall ignore them completely.

For sleeping in a classroom is most assuredly an art. Of course, there are a few uncouth individuals who may attempt to do so without grace and subtlety, but they are usually awakened by an irate teacher with a threatening look in her eyes. For the present, however, I shall discuss a few varied methods and postures of past masters of this unusual talent.

If you should look up some day from your text book and see a fellow scholar slumped in his seat with one hand shading his eyes apparently reading the open book lying before him, do not be deceived into thinking that he is studying. He is probably having a peaceful snooze. This method, however, has one advantage, for if his hand should accidentally slip from his head, he would, no doubt, nurse a bruised nose for a week or so afterwards.

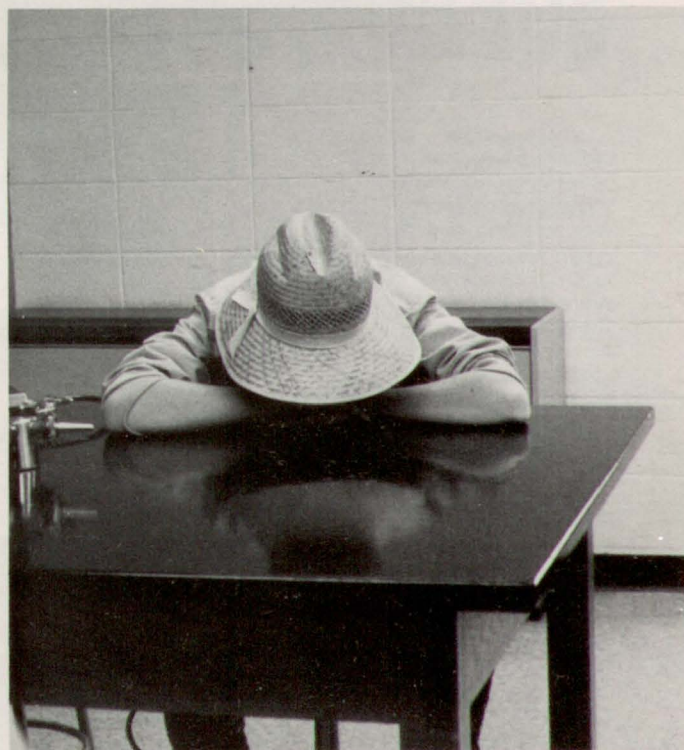

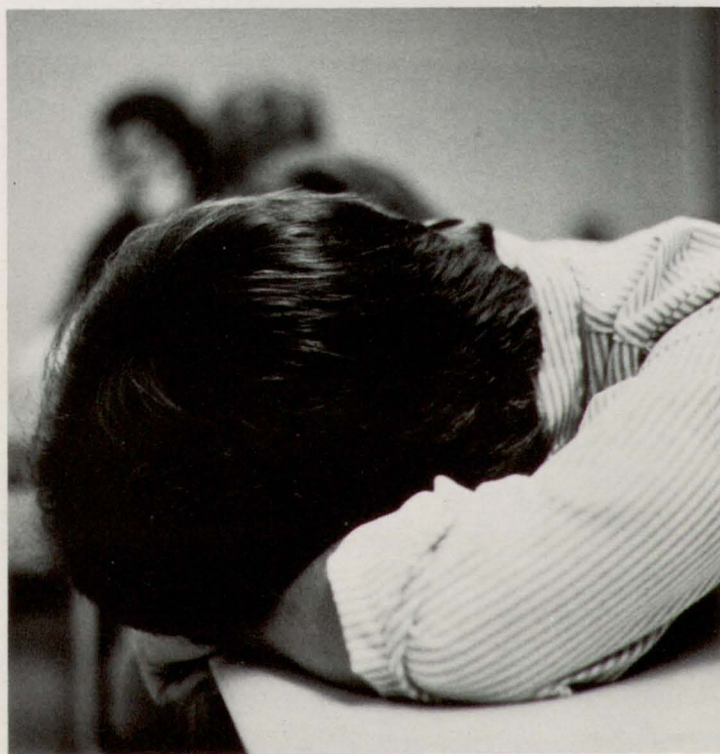

Another method, which takes practice, is to slump far down into your seat and hold your reader upright before you so that it bars your face from the teacher's view. (If you have an unsatisfactory scholastic standing, this will make a good impression on the teacher — if you can get away with it.)

There is one method in which you really take your life in your hands, and that is — merely sit up and let your head drop upon your chest. One unfortunate person who did this was thrown off balance by some dream (supposedly stepping from an eight-story building) and woke up, dazedly, with his feet sticking up ungracefully above his own desk, and his head on the floor beneath his neighbor's desk. It really is too bad that he hadn't sagged the other way, for his "pal" sat there and could have prevented the embarrassing mishap.

There is one practice that I shall mention which is resorted to by only the most desperate seekers after dreamland. YOU merely pillow your head on your folded arms, and — well you can guess the rest. To insure success, there must be a pupil in front of you as a shield from the seeking eyes of a teacher.

But I suppose that my attempted explanation is all in vain and that you probably will resort to some unimaginative method and be caught while sleeping in a classroom.

Tenth Grade Crisis

Life was so innocent . . . when I was young.
 How I yearn for those days of infancy,
 Those earliest years of childhood when life
 Was sparkling new and deliciously wonderful,
 When breeze in the trees sang simple songs
 And the discoveries of God's world
 Were just beyond the threshold.
 These days seem different
 As I struggle to retain my youth.
 I feel I'm losing myself to the ever beckoning
 Realities of adulthood.
 My world is intruded upon by new anxieties,
 All the pressure coming together now explode
 And I am left open to the cruel world,
 Vulnerable and defeated.
 Running blindly through my tears,
 Yet knowing not from what I run,
 I find myself in a thicket of woods.
 Wallowing in self-pity, around me I hear
 A long forgotten sound-that of crickets.
 The unison of a thousand tiny beings
 Screaming in ecstasy grows louder and louder,
 The sound shreds my soul . . .
 Until I listen.
 It is then that I hear not the shrills of society,
 But a song of merriment, a remembrance of the past.
 I, so complex, feel suddenly inferior
 To their simplicity. Have the discoveries
 Of life ceased? No, this earth is still full of Innocence . . . for I am so very young.

THE LOST ACORN

Many years ago during Indian summer there was once a very busy little squirrel. He was gathering acorns for his winter food supply. As he was gathering and taking them up the tree, he dropped one. It rolled down the tree and under a hollow log. The next day he hunted everywhere but when night approached, he still had not found the last acorn. He gave up looking and the acorn lay there all winter. When spring came, it grew and grew until it became the Knotty Oak of today. Often as I sit in school and look out the window, I think to myself of what might not have been if in that Indian summer many years ago the little squirrel had found his lost acorn.
