Leaps, Bounds,

Reach for the highest star,
Be proud of who you are.
Never doubt what you can do
No matter what obstacle faces you.
Hold on to your dreams and Just believe.
We are living proof that
All can achieve.

Diversity

The people of Coventry High are a collage of races, sizes, and beliefs. This diversity stretches from straight to shady, and preppy to hippy. Whether you're athletic or apathetic, there is a home for you at C.H.S. Clones and individualists alike are brought together in a harmonious conglomeration known as Study Hall. It is here, in the cafeteria, where C.H.S.'s diverse population is most obvious. On a given day you may see herds of chattering mouths and scribbling pens, much to the dismay of the watchful eyes of Coventry's finest. This multi-faceted group of teachers and students makes Coventry High a school which is a step beyond — diversity.

Seniors

Stepping Beyond-

We, the Class of 1991, have been doing so for all our lives. Beginning school, first jobs, or other activities are indeed challenges. The enduring question "What lies ahead?" can never truly be answered until we do step beyond. We step beyond our past experiences, habits, or customs to indulge into new and diverse opportunities. Although we have been encountering new challenges throughout our lives, leaving Coventry High School is perhaps the most intimidating step we will have taken. In June 1991, we leave Coventry High School to step into colleges, jobs or other opportunities. No longer will we have our parents or teachers to turn to for guidance. We will be on our own to a greater extent than ever before, and this independence will help us to mature. The question remains: "What lies ahead?". Although we cannot foresee the future, we will work hard in order to take advantage of the vast opportunities and to overcome the variety of obstacles that our diverse interests bring about. Success, in all forms, is inevitable for the Class of 1991 as we "Step Beyond". -Shoeless Joe

Make It Last Forever

On Saturday, April 20, 1990 the Junior Class of Coventry High School anxiously entered the Rocky Point Palladium for their Junior Promenade. The theme song, Make It Last Forever, was appropriate for the Class of '91. As we nervously entered the palladium, we noticed the beautiful sparkling decorations. After dinner, the couples waited for the crowning of the 1990 Prom Queen. The candidates, Nicole Walshe, Shelley Weinand, Lolita Lipa, Christine Flyntz, and Sue Syintsakos were escorted to the stage by their dates as the song of their choice was played. The girls anxiously awaited as Tina Harpin, the reigning Prom Queen, crowned Shelley Weinand as the new queen. After an evening of dancing, we adjourned to New England Health and Racquet Club for the Post Prom Party.

VINCENT ROMANO

The History of the Class of 1991

We, the class of 1991, entered the hallowed halls of Coventry High School on September 2, 1987. Wow, it was big! They gave us only one day to acquaint ourselves with the vast quantity of new territory. We had all memorized every rule in the handbook the night before in fear of a pop quiz. With the help of our homeroom teachers, we deciphered our computer processed schedules. In the weeks that followed we elected Desiree Washington as our fearless leader for our freshman year. Throughout the next few months we endured countless attacks of humiliation and embarrassment from the upperclassmen. As our freshman year came to an end, we experienced our first semiformal gala event . . . the Freshman Dance. By this time we considered ourselves more than just your typical freshman.

As yet another September arrived, we once again found ourselves staring at schedules, worrying about grades, and watching the average number of sleeping hours go down the drain. Kerri Roberts served her first term of president in our sophomore year. This was an exciting year for all of us as we gained our independence and were able to torture the class of 1992, just as we had been by the class of 1990. We attended drivers training class so that our parents no longer had to drag us from place to place. We discovered that there were more than just academics at Coventry High as we began to partake in clubs, sports, and activities. Another year came to an end.

Our junior year was a period of stress and more stress. Finally we had power, but thanks to Mr. DiMicco, the Pikes, and Mr. MacDonald we had very few opportunities to enforce it. Classes and homework became to be an overwhelming part of our everyday lives. Our junior year was not all work, though. With Lolita Lipa as our president helping to organize many events that made it one of our most memorable years. In December we attended the Junior-Senior Christmas Dance. As spring approached we prepared for the Junior Prom. The night finally arrived when the girls and guys dressed up and were ushered by limo to the Rocky Point Palladium for an evening of dancing. Here Shelley Weinand was named Prom Queen. Finally the day came when we officially became seniors. On Class Day we went to the auditorium to see the Class of 1990 off. We turned our rings and assumed the role of the senior class of 1991.

Our senior year had finally arrived! Kerri Roberts was once again our president. This was a year of applications, SATs, achievement tests, transcripts, and career decisions. Oh, to be a freshman again! On Homecoming Day, Shelley Weinand and Jeffrey Pennington were crowned King and Queen. On December 7, 1990, we attended the annual Junior Senior Christmas Dance at Evelyn's Villa. The year was 1991 and all around were signs of Senioritis with graduation quickly approaching. The frenzy of final exams had come and gone. On June 7, 1991 the Senior Ball was held at Johnson and Wales Hospitality Center in Seekonk. Boy we looked great! We ate, danced and reminisced about our four short years that had flown by. Our last day at Coventry High School arrived, Class Day. We laughed, we cried, and we left. Our high school career at CHS had come to an end. On June 12, 1991, we took that long walk across the stage and then we moved on our separate ways.

Class

Know All Men by These Presents: That We the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Ninety One Being in Good Health and Sound of Mind and Memory, Assemble and Write this Our Last Will and Testament.

Lynn Adams bequeath to Tracie McCain a 4X4 truck to pass through Bedrock. To Melissa Anderson a family of Weebles and an entire weekend alone. And to Rich Pendola a thank you for all the happiness you have brought to me.

Chris Albro bequeath five tickets to Wrigley Field to Jay, Mike, and Jim. A limo with a chauffeur to Bonnie, Danielle, and Amy. A nose to Bonnie so she won't have to ruin hers. A box of kleenex and thanks for those talks to Heather; a smile to Amy so she won't look so grouchy; to Danielle anything she wants, I'll never forget you. And my crazy and weirdness and the name Bubba to anyone who can handle the honor. Thanks for the great times guys.

Christopher Allen bequeath B.B. new parents so when we get in trouble you won't get nailed.

Craig Aldrich bequeath to Chris Field a car with a 350 engine and insurance so he'll always have a ride. To Matt Maynard all the Iron Maiden tapes and posters made for him to listen to and cover his walls with. To Larry Chase, I leave a real haircut (one like Brian's) for his senior year. To Brian Harrington I leave all the great times in his last year in prison and his old coronet (restored) and to "never say goodbye."

Shawn Ancil bequeath a van to Chris G. and lots of luck to my sister Kris because she'll need it.

Heather Andersen bequeath to Jeff P. dancing lessons so next time we won't fall on the dance floor. Evelyn H. a new car so she doesn't have to drive that boat anymore. Also a yacht so maybe we'll have a decent boat trip next time, but if not a heavy weight tent to sleep in on a deserted island so we won't blow away. And Kris B. "Ha, ha what did he say?"

Melissa Anderson bequeath another night with the Weebles to Tracie; a job to Inga so she doesn't have to clean the house anymore; a case of yogurt and all my nights of eating, sleeping, and watching T.V. to Gill; some more homeroom advice to Lynn; a Lynx to Stacy since that's what she'll be driving next year and all my love to Scott.

Debbie Andrews bequeath a Ford and all my love to Craig; all the nights with P.P. and Paula and wishes we had better things to do than drive up and down Tiogue Avenue; all my brains to Nikki so she doesn't have to spend six years in college like she did in high school.

Sarah Andrews bequeath Donna Bjorklund a social and environmental conscience, a guy with long hair who is really "sensitive," and a jar of cherries with stems so that she can learn to tie them in knots with her tongue like I can. Sue Piche good luck, money, chocolate, and JOLT! cola with me and Donna and Vinny at the park and ride. Jenn "Squid" Souza a trip to Stonehenge, England's oldest rock group, and a crop circle with a view. Vinny Cece a great last year of high school and good luck with your marriage to Sue (Zsa Zsa) and a chocolate Awful Awful. Sue W., a thousand coke tabs and friends who eat peanutless salads. Barry Tyson good luck, all my science fiction novels, and a gallon drum of Armor-All. Aimee Burdick good luck being the oldest in high school and little chunks of "real" food at the salad bar. Karen D., my Alfred E. Newman school ideals (What, me study?) Blanca C. a wild week with all of us in Mexico. Chris A. a lens cap so he can't catch me on film when I'm doing dumb stuff. Laura Leigh my parking spot, my locker, a peek in my journal, and my sisterly love.

Tracy Andrukiewicz bequeath all my tigers including the ones on my car to all underclassmen, and the best of luck in the future to my best friend Kate Dyl who deserves the best.

The Second "Boxer Rebellion".

After taking several years of history, we all know the "Boxer Rebellion" involved the Chinese rebelling against foreigners over "The Open Door Policy". In the senior class "The Second Boxer Rebellion" has taken a twist in meaning. Fifty percent of seniors, who preferred briefs, overpowered the 47.3 percent, who were uprising with boxers to overthrow the conventional population. The 'other' 2.7 percent gave responses that were quite unprintable.

The Mile

Phew! English is finally over. What's next ... Ah gym! Great, I like volleyball. As I enter the lockerroom, the rumors begin. The freshmen scurry around with confused looks on their faces. Why do all of the physical education teachers have stopwatches? My friends sit quietly, their heads hung low. "The mile", someone utters.

We walk outside, like members of a chain gang.

Wow, it's cold today. The track lies ahead. The dreaded phrases: "On your marks." (What marks?) "Get set." (Yeah, right) "GO!" Some walk, some run, some trot, some stand still. I try a bit of each. Four laps and a few pulled muscles later, we return to the lockerroom, collapse, change clothes, and go on to our next class. Isn't physical fitness fun? -Shoeless Joe

Look Up !!!!!

The seniors at CHS look up at the ceiling when they are having difficulty remembering an answer on a test. Nineteen percent of the students said they were looking for help from God. Unfortunately, 11.6 percent said it was a cover up for looking at the person's paper beside them. The 10.7 percent losing their grip on reality said the answers were up there, but they are there from the 7.4 percent who wrote the answers there before the test. Four percent said there are elves in the ceiling who whisper the answers to them. Two respondents believe the answers are on the top of their brains and if they tilt their heads back the answer will slip down the skull to their tongues.

The Modern Art

Some of the hairdos of the students require great sculpting skill. The manufacturers of the products, which are used to transform hair into modern art work, must make a mint from the purchases of students alone. Hours before the school day begins, alarm clocks are ringing and sleepy heads stumble into the shower. Soon after, hairdryers, mousse, and gel appear in an attempt at a metamorphosis. When the whir of the hairdryer stops there is a strange hissing noise . . . a mist forms filling the room with a toxic cloud for the next victim to inhale. Then it's off to wait for the bus. But wait . . . OH NO!!! It's raining!!

Weekly Allowance

Although the U.S. economy is in a recession, the students of Coventry High still find a way to spend a lot of money every week. Here are the top five amounts students spend each week:

1. $20 19.6%

2.	$30	12.6%
3.	$40	9.8%
4.	$50	8.4%
5.	$10	5.6%
	$100	5.6%

The rest of the response ranged from zero to 2 trillion. We have some big spenders in CHS!!

Dragons & Things

Imagine the Seniors of Coventry High taking a step beyond ... the Universe. We would all be teleported to a newly discovered planet with hopes of making history. There would be no pollution, no wars, and no money to corrupt. The main topic of conversations would be the brand new Games Arena not the Ozone Layer. The new settlements would provide an opportunity of a life time with discoveries of never seen before plant life, animals, and land formations. Don't forget the flying dragons that would exist. Dragons come in handy for transportation, protection, and friendship. What a world!!!

Cologne

You're sitting there waiting for class to begin, suddenly, there is an overwhelming odor.

"What's that smell!?" you ask the person to your right.

"It's my new cologne. My boyfriend gave it to me, isn't he sweet?" she responded.

"Oh He has great taste." Choke! Cough!

Gag!

Well, what else can you say? Let's face it, an insult would only make her feel bad and create an enemy. Everyone has different ideas and styles, one must make certain allowances in order to keep peace. Besides, wouldn't you want someone to tolerant of your own off the wall ideas? I would.

Togetherhness

What is togetherhness? Togetherhness is the quality or state of being or belonging. This sense of unity contains different connotations for different people. It could mean that you are close friends and call each other every hour on the hour. It can also mean that you are joined at the heart, the hand, the hip, or the lip. But to psychology students togetherhness would be a need for affiliation. However you feel, togetherhness is an intricate part of everyone's life. I will admit that when we first began to make friends it was difficult. Deciding who was part of the "In" Crowd was a tricky process. As the senior class of 1991 has matured, the exclusive cliques have broken down and now we are together.

Monday, Monday

"... Bzzz ... Turning your head to the cause of that annoying noise, you see the clock's little numbers declaring that it is time to get up. Still half asleep, you once again trudge through a routine that is mostly done out of habit. Yawning and shading your eyes from the glaring light, one question runs across your mind: 'Where did the weekend go?' Wasn't it just yesterday that the bell rang at the end of last period? The floor is cold too ..."

Does this sound familiar? These are the classic symptoms of 'Schoolweekum Beginim', more commonly known as 'Monday Morning Syndrome'. Students who suffer from this can be identified by having unusually short attention spans, napping before homeroom, and having a general 'Why am I here?' look upon their face. Although these symptoms tend to clear up with the passage of time

Our roving reporters interviewed several seniors and asked the question - If you could go anywhere, where would you go and why? Never at a loss for words, Neil Miller replied: "Australia, because it is the farthest away from Rhode Island." Searching for further horizons, Laura Charron replied: "Outerspace, because I want to see it, instead of just reading about it!"
