You Got the Right

School, Aha!

School spirit is still running rampant at CHS. Of course, there are those fish who insist on swimming upstream and feel no allegiance toward CHS; but the greater majority show strong feelings of enthusiasm.

When questioned as to what makes CHS better than other schools, the answers displayed a tremendous variety. A few of the more cerebrally oriented students felt that our course selection is the key to CHS success. This includes the ability to elect West Bay vo-tech or honors courses. Others felt credit lay with the teachers and administrative staff. While still others felt that our diversity in extra-curricular activities (such as sports, clubs, and WCVY) was the leading factor. One particular fan, Andrew Fiocchi, reasoned that, "CHS is better because of its super-duper sporting events." There is also that element of the student body governed by hormonal imbalances who thought that the attractiveness of the student body makes CHS so great.

When asking, "How do you show your school spirit?" we were apparently prying deep into the heart of a personal matter. Some individuals who are not bothered by the cold exhibit their pride in the school by "wearing red and white underwear on school days," or perhaps nothing at all. This daring individual declared, "I do come to school nude once in a while." I guess I am just lucky never to have caught sight of this demonstration!! A bit less graphic are those who show spirit "by dating CHS girls". And the most popular answer was participating in the traditional school spirit week. This is probably more moral, as well as more along the lines of what one may expect.

Lastly, our participants were asked, "What do you do to make CHS better?". While those people who felt rather apathetic responded "Nothing", or "my presence"; others felt differently. Some people feel that by doing their personal best they improve CHS, but the most popular answer to this question was participating in the various clubs offered. However, one person, who proved that one individual can make a difference, answered that she insists on throwing away all the lunch she can find. She also feels that it is her duty to peel gum off of desks. It seems unfortunate that all of the students don't go to such an extreme to better CHS. However, if everyone pitched in so eagerly, our lunch room staff would have lots of excess time on their hands.

As we finished asking our questions, we discovered that most of the CHS population takes great pride in their school. They attend the various exciting sporting events to cheer on victories with good-natured gusto. Meanwhile, the next time you see someone wearing red and white underwear, you'll know that they're heading off to school at CHS.

Oaker Pride

Fans Rejoice As Oakers Trounce

Avengers

This year, on Saturday, October 12, Coventry High School students rose bright and early to travel to Coventry Credit Union to prepare for the annual homecoming parade. After 2 hours of painstaking preparation, the procession began promptly at 11:00. Those who marched or rode on floats, tossed candy to those bystanders who arrived in droves to witness the event. The parade continued to the high school for festivities later in the day.

At 1:30 the game was kicked off with the singing of the national anthem. The first half went very well for the Oaker squad, who "went to the locker room" with the lead. The extensive festivities at halftime began with a performance by our cheerleaders who were followed by the pom-pom girls and the band. Then, all of the nominees for king and queen were introduced and escorted onto the field. Eric George & Amy Carlson were named Homecoming King and Queen. To conclude they were followed by a procession of parade floats around the tracks. Thus, the second half began with much fanfare. Before packed stands despite the chilly, windy conditions, the Oakers held their own and maintained their lead, shutting out the Avengers 20 to 0. As everyone left the stands they felt an incredible sense of euphoria. The day was one of rejoicing and fun for all since C.H.S. proved victorious for the first time in years.

Things That Go

Bump!

You awake bathed in a cold sweat. Tonight's nightmare brought to life a swirling hurricane which tossed you like so much Caesar salad. You felt yourself falling as you screamed for help, but you finally awoke. Because you take psychology you realize the storm represents your complete inability to control the bizarre events which unfold around you. Welcome to the Senior Zone!

As you strain to attempt futile steps toward the adult world, strange forces hold you back, trying to keep you a child- FOREVER. Submitted for your approval, one unsuspecting senior and her traveling companions. The story begins as the group departs on a three hour journey to a college of choice. The sun, for once, stays in R.I. as the wayfarers make their way to northern regions. Upon arrival at the school an eerie mist greets them accompanied by a freakish drizzle, which chills their souls. Everything goes well until lunch when the student in question is possessed by gremlins and manages to spill a half gallon glass of chocolate milk on herself. Sensing that the forces of evil are at work, she runs to the rest room to wash off the wicked potion only to find a lack of paper towels, which is not at all impressive in so ritzy (and expensive) a school. Later, on the ride home, the companions are trapped in the Traffic of No Return which ambushed them somewhere around Foxboro Stadium. As a final hex from the Spirits of Childhood Past the girl burns her mouth in an almost fatal accident involving a killer pancake at the local Bickford's. Beware seniors, you could be next!

The Sonic Hedgehog

Aha 92!

President -Erica St. Jean, Erica has been elected to lead the class of 1992 once again. Erica's leadership will certainly bring us a profitable and enjoyable senior year.

Officers- Kerra Gazerro- Student Council Rep, Jill Sacchetti- Secretary, Anna Buckley- Vice-President, Amy Carlson - Treasurer, Melissa Gentry- West Bay Rep. The 1992 class officers are instrumental in the smooth running of our final year. They have to oversee the entire Senior Ball, which some claim to be the most important night of a teen's life.

Advisor- Mrs. Nancy Cyr. Mrs. Cyr is the master mind who brings the senior year its success. Under her guidance the class of 1992 will receive gowns and caps, have a beautiful Senior Ball and graduate during a stirring ceremony to be remembered forever.

Social Committee- Rebecca Fitzpatrick, Stacey Anderson, Eric George- Chairperson, Melissa Alin, Gina Catanzaro. The social committee is involved in supporting the officers and doing hard work. The committee recently produced a great homecoming float which roused the crowd and the team.

He said:

Standing by the door on the first day of school was not very enjoyable; however, it was the best place for him to check out the girls as they filed into C.H.S. He and his friends feigned casual conversation while they scoped incoming crowds. She strolled by, batting her eyelashes with a sassy tilt of the head, as she breathed, "Good morning!" Flattered by the attention, he smiled and greeted her before turning to his friends to discuss the incident. The next thing he knew, he was always passing her in the halls. She was even outside every one of his classes. From time to time, she would stop to speak to him or hand him notes gushing with perfume. Pleased by her affection, his ego soared, and he did almost everything to encourage her advances by graciously accepting her phone calls and talking with her about a variety of subjects. But then suddenly, something changed. She stopped calling and running into him; all attention ceased. A little disappointed, he dismissed her apparent lack of interest with a shrug of the shoulders, "Women! Who can understand them?"

-M. Graham

She said:

She began her chase on the first day of school when she entered C.H.S. While she scanned the crowds standing around, she wondered where her soul-mate was. Then, she spotted him, talking and laughing with his friends, near the door. As she sauntered past him, smiling and bidding him a "Good morning" she could not help thinking how perfect he was. To her delight, he responded with a "Hello" and a return smile. Thrilled by her success, she stealthily planned her next maneuvers. Soon, she was running into him in the halls no less than seven times a day. She even managed to obtain a copy of his schedule which she efficiently memorized for immediate reference. Occasionally, she managed to stop and exchange a few words with the object of her desire. Sappy notes, reeking perfume, written during stolen moments of unnecessary classes soon broke the communication barrier. Eventually, when she tired of batting her eyelashes and flirting in the halls, she would call her beloved after school. But not everything lasts forever; this is certainly true of crushes. After a while, she tired of the game and moved on, free to pursue another "prince" to begin the chase again.

Learning By Doing and Hands-on Training is the West Bay Story

West Bay Vocational-Technical School is available to all students in their Junior and Senior years at Coventry High. A three week time-about program makes it possible for students to receive hands-on training in twelve different programs: Auto Body, Automotive Technology, Cabinetmaking, Carpentry, Child Care, Electronics/Computer Technology, Environmental Resources, Food Service, Machine Technology, Nursing Assistant, Printing and Graphic Arts, and Welding Technology.

West Bay students are proud of their accomplishments. Many students participate in VICA (Vocational Clubs of America) and compete in the state and national skill competitions. Each year many West Bay students receive the honor of being distinguished merit winners in their vocational-technical fields.

The West Bay program prepares students for immediate employment after high school, however, many graduates continue their education at a two or four year college or technical schools.

We braved months of preparation and untold dangers to dance

SIDE BY SIDE

Riiingg! The 1:40 bell shocked me out of my daydream of flowers, taffeta gowns, and tuxedos. As I broke for the door, I began to review my list of preparations. "O.K., first shower, do my hair, and eat a little. At 6:03, exactly, I have to get dressed." By the time I got off the longest bus ride in history, which I was subjected to as the only junior who still didn't have a license, I bolted into the house to start my race against time. While I ran around in a crazed state, my date was napping leisurely without any concerns for hair or hemlines. As I barked at my family, who later likened me to a step-sister, rather than my image of Cinderella, I realized I could not locate my $35 necklace that I bought expressly to go with my dress. My haste to buy some time for launching a pearl-finding expedition in my hopelessly messy room then caused me to literally go through (the toe) of no less than three pairs of pantyhose. By the time my date arrived, ten minutes late, we still had to brave leering parents with cameras that magically malfunction at the touch of a button. Once at the Rocky Point Palladium the gale force winds destroyed my perfect hair. We waited in line for a half hour to have our pictures done and then the actual dinner began. We enjoyed each others company over rubber chicken while others danced to popular songs. Later Danielle Haggis and Michael Primrose were crowned Prom Queen and King. The night ended with volleyball and swimming at New England Health and Racquetball. What had begun in disaster ended in a little magic for all involved.

Aha! The Right Story, Baby!

The Class of '92's Long and Winding Road . . .

On September 2, 1989 Coventry High School opened its doors to a new freshman class. We stumbled through the deserted halls completely puzzled by the unique numbering system which seemed to follow no logical or ordinal pattern. Our teachers tried futilely to intimidate us by piling on the homework and stressing us to the max. We relieved the stress of our new high school life by attending the seemingly weekly dances known to be the hub of upperclassmen activity. Erica St. Jean was voted President and led us into Spirit Week which gave us the chance to prove our superiority to all other classes. Our spirit shone through especially in the penny jars which secured us a second place win (due to some shady activity on the part of the Senior Class). Our next big event was the Freshman Dance, A Starry Night on March 10, 1989. This night of finery closed the chapter of our Freshman year.

Our Sophomore year opened with the new aspect of honors classes. Our English teachers forced us to write until our fingers bled while Mr. Piascik kept our spirits afloat with stories of bizarre Renaissance figures. One of the big events of the year was the election of President Gina Catanzaro. The Club Coca-Cola Dance was a high point as well, with its giant video and numerous contests. We again came in an oh-so-shocking second to the sneaky Seniors. Our second triumph closed the Sophomore year, the calm before the storm.

The Junior year had finally arrived and with it power-or so we thought. The class of '92 continued to break ground by surviving our classes and SAT's. While teachers tried to bludgeon us into submission with such thrilling classics as Moby Dick and the Physics text book. We managed to scrape together enough energy to finally, legitimately win Spirit Week by trouncing the Seniors who apparently didn't cheat hard enough. Class Day was marked by President Damon Phelps' stirring message during the turning of the rings. The Junior Prom at the Rocky Point Palladium, an event we had long awaited, was distinguished by the crowning of Danielle Haggis as Prom Queen and the crowning of the first official Prom King, Mike Primrose.

The Senior year began with the arduous task of filling out applications. However loathesome this job was, we were momentarily uplifted by the Homecoming Game. Our own Oaker football team managed to destroy the East Greenwich Avengers for the first time in our high school careers. Eric George and Amy Carlson were crowned King and Queen of our triumphant weekend. The new wing opened opportunities to use the language labs to add to our confusion. The Christmas Ball, Mistletoe and Holly, was, well- an experience. We tried our luck at formal occasions for a final time at the Senior Ball held at Johnson and Wales Hospitality Center on May 8, 1992. From then our final days passed quickly with Class Day on June 11 and ultimately the culmination of all our efforts on June 13, 1992. Graduation at the Warwick Musical Theater symbolized the pride and love we shared with each other and our school. As we received our diplomas we looked back on our accomplishments with mixed emotions, and looked ahead with excitement and prospects for our future.

Know All Men by These Presents: That We, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Ninety Two, Being in Good Health and Sound of Mind and Memory, Assemble and Write this Our Last Will and Testament.

Julie Adams bequeath an E.D., a guy, 80 more times to Scarborough Beach with Manny and Syd, a radar detector so we won't have to go 54 m.p.h. on the highway, an endless supply of Del's and clothes from the GAP, another night of man-hunt with the crew, 100 more latenight walks through Wood Estates, another "chowder" experience, a complete set of Pina's proverbs, another trip to Bess Eaton at 3 a.m., another trip to Warwick Mall, one more field trip with Lena Deutsch, Hey Jill, I have a question for you, "Don't drive to my wedding, o.k.?" I want you to make it there in one piece. Thanks for all the good times and for being there when I needed you most. Your the best! To Jill (J-Pie) Sacchetti. To Kerra G. the infamous McD's side salad, four more years with Mrs. DiPrete, another "Today's Special", a field trip that you can go on, a night of real fun so Eric George will get off your case, and 100 more car trips with Manny. Kerra it's been a blast! Being friends with you was special and I will always remember the good times the three of us shared. To Kerri-Lynn a beautiful husband, a "nice" man, a new laugh, a "real" car, a job you like, but most importantly a friendship like ours that will last a lifetime. Best wishes with you and Chad and whatever the future may hold. To Eric Oaks 100 more nights of man-hunt with the crew, and a girl who he doesn't think is hot. Our friendship was one in a million. I will always treasure the laughs we shared. Thanks for everything. To Chris (Fierce) Menard as many seatbelts as possible so he'll ride in the car with me, as many pairs of Nike Air shoes that he wants, and someone in college to do his English vocab. for him. The past five years with you has been great. What would I have done without all your rude comments? Seriously, our friendship was definitely a golden one and I will always value the times we shared. Thanks for everything! To Cathy C. What can I say? Our friendship has definitely progressed for the better, wouldn't you say? Have fun with Soscia during the next two years - trust me, it gets better. To Katie M. it's been a long four years with Mrs. DiPrete, but boy did we laugh! Pina's Picanic, keep smiling Katie, it gets better! Good luck with everything.

Jennifer Allen bequeath to Michelle someone with nice arms and good hair, a trip on 95 south, a good map of N.K. so we never get lost again, and those K.F.C. biscuits. To Steve an H.P. calculator, a possum, and a collection of Sean Conner films. To Eric a pile of bark mulch and a pitchfork. To Kerra a volleyball that doesn't give her bruises and a physics lab we can do in one try. To Jen little gummy things. To K.P. an 8 by 10 of the Old Man. To Skippy my "read-em-and-weep" pair of two's. To Jay another homeroom B-ball buddy. To J.K. the ultimate tennis match. To Tara my life story to be told at softball practice. To Dave the witch of Agnesi. To Erin "Duke rules". To my silent morning companion vocal cords and lots of luck (not that he needs it) and a big U-turn to everyone who has ever driven with me.

Tricia Allen bequeath to all my friends my best year at CHS. Thanks a lot. To Melanie all the things we have ever done in the past 10 years. To April an extra set of keys to your car, when you get one. To Kris Burke all the fun times we had in French and I think you look edgy and nervous. To Jenny B. all the gum she ever needs and I'll stop calling you Jenny. To my sister the good times we are finally having since you moved out. To the rest of my family and friends, thanks and to W.P. - "one more tree".

Matt Almeida bequeath one more of our "interesting" study conversations to Melissa A. My ability of knowing exactly what to say to which teachers to get exactly what I want to my little brother. A jeep that runs to Chad F. A car to Keith P. - so he can for once in his life drive me around. A portable bed to Byron L. - so he can sleep in something besides my hot tub. The ability to keep her mouth shut to "Spook". Another night with C.F., K.P., B.L., A.T., B.T., C.A., M.S. and J.B. where I can stay long enough to have fun. Finally to Jessica, I leave not only my love, but enough strength to deal with the fact that September I'll be thousands of miles away from you surrounded by thousands of unattached college girls!

Shawna Ammon bequeath all the rules in the world, a permanent seatbelt, every number of every letter of the alphabet to Jen. A permanent smile to my Sunshine. A good morning to Sherry. Tea bags to Lavag. Lots of "thanks mom" to Egg.

Keith Ancil bequeath to M. Suennan a new Aries, three pairs of Indiana socks, and cows. To M. Sousa flab, chest hair, and a razor to shave his fake-me-out mustaches. To C. Kelly a "trouble-free" night out. To J. Becker a lifetime supply of school cookies. To R. Cicercia a car and polish sausage. To Ms. Howell Richard Gere, a cast that will listen, and all the thanks in the world.

Erin Anderson bequeath to Grimace a chicken sandwich, road map of R.I. and a real man. To Jody a world map, an airplane, and the newest Motley Crue tape. To Shawna I leave a big fat "NO!" and the Chicago Shuffle (remember: Chicago, Chicago, Chicago). To Steph my awesome jumpshot because she needs it and a few more inches so she can't deny being six feet tall. To my Anderson sister Stacey "I am a pilgrim". To Missy some gas money and peace is forever. To Rob a pair of pants with no pockets so he can't fall. To Erica Greene the phone number of 911. To Tracey the ability to peel out in reverse and a little black book so she can keep track of her hot dates.

Stacey Lee Anderson bequeath to Amy C. a license to have a cole slaw fight in KFC any time you want. To Truppa the ability to calm down and drive as good as me. Another near death experience with me and Mel and a real UFO to Amy V. and Page. My ability to say the word stethoscope to Page. To Amy and Kerri another week when our parents go away at the same time. A fresh smelling carpet to Spook. A lily pad and a non-OOC moment to the last two remaining members of the frog squad, Gofit and Page. My pilgrim outfit to my twin sister Erin. Another trip to Italy and many late nights with Gummybears for me, Mel, and Amy. M.C., S.O., J.M., and H.L. may you never forget to flip your pimples. To Nathan, a friendship like we had before the romance. To Clem, the ability to be as innocent as me and to sleep quietly. And to my best friend Mel Crowe a hearing aide, all the stove to stuffing and potato salad in the world, the ability to feel yourself burning, a guy that treats you good, my positive attitude, and my make-up. PEACE!!

Rhonda Andrews, bequeath to Tonya F. a car and, of course, that special man. To Kim S. I give Mel G., dead, so you can do what you have to do. To Jay F. and Bert B. I give new cars so maybe someday you'll be done working on the old ones. To SB, MS, MF, and ED I wish you all the best. To Paul Andrade I love you! The Class of '92 Rules!

Scott Andrews bequeath my attitude to all those underclassmen who think they have one. Good luck to all my friends. Hope to see ya partying after graduation. Good luck to "God" (Steve Smith) who has all the girls I've already had!!! I also bequeath my golden locks to any underclassman who has a big enough club to beat off the women.

Marcia Antos bequeath the perfect guy to Jenn; a supply of Smartfood and Twinkies to Anne; attacks, Chi Alpha Mu, the scout leader, the mesh scarf and a never-ending friendship to Rayne (a.k.a. Shirley); and all my love forever to Artie.

Marjana Antunovic, bequeath to Erica S. a later curfew and a shopping spree at Express. To Dan F. my foreign accent and "pivo." To Shana T. a trip to Europe to see all ancient places. To Stacy A. a classy guy with a gorgeous body. To Ben C. a wig in case he loses his hair. To all the good people I met at the parties free tickets to Yugoslavia to visit me.

Stacey Arruda bequeath to Inga a Mobil Station and a million thank you's for knowing how to be a real friend; Matt Vesey a math class we can both pass; Shana a promise that I'll always keep my car clean, a life-time supply of lipstick, and an everlasting smile because she always knows how to cheer me up; Jackie another night of bonding, a trip to CVS, and my driving abilities; Brian H. a map so he will find my house; Jen P. a guy that will treat her right; Katie her own sweatshirt in case of another cold night; Travis a ski trip to YaGoo; Jenn M. a fight over a balcony, Lori D. a pair of blue Keds, our ability to get away with doing almost anything, a camping trip and an everlasting friendship that can overcome anything; Maryana a neverending stay in the U.S. and a new nickname; and lots of luck and the ability to stay out of trouble to MV, SG, KC, BH, RP, JM, HF, JS, KG, AV, JP, and anyone I forgot to mention.

Elise Audet bequeath Renee C. to go out with someone else and stay with them and a box of candy. Sany F. "you got the right one baby" - thanks for everything. A new car, driving lessons and a brot to Keri C. To Jaime M. graduation. To my god, Brandon B., a tree so he can hit it anytime he wants and a real radar detector. Jay F. a car that drives itself for the weekends and a stone wall. Sleep and the power to make everyone laugh (thanks) to John Bigden. A real job to Uncle Glen. Beth and Bill luck. Jay L. not to hate me. To Kevin C. a dollar and a quarter. Jen R. to calm down a little bit Jay L. and luck in everything. A real slow car or a good radar detector and power to beat me in pool, to Danny! I love you Scooter Nose! And everyone to beware of the grave keeper!

Dhimant Balar bequeath to my envious friend, Matt, my gifted talent for hitting a b-ball; to a long time friend "Grendel" some goalie skills; and to Judah some of my Hindu "magic." Good luck Class of '92, especially JB, MA, SR, CK, and KM.

Pat Beauchamp bequeath all of my love to Patricia O'Laes, to Greg Skorohod a real cougar, to John L. a blank check so he can buy his dream machine, and thanks to everyone and to JC, BH, GS, KB, RF, JF, and JL.

CHS's English department teaches students to appreciate the classics of literature. Unfortunately, the works most teachers adore are not the same ones the students prefer. By far, most respondents to our senior survey adamantly despised "anything dealing with William Shakespeare," especially Julius Caesar and Macbeth. Seniors selected books from American literature as frequently as English works. In particular, a negative maritime theme prevailed with The Old Man and the Sea and Moby Dick as popular choices.

However, the English department does not have a monopoly on assigned readings. Many other classes have required readings. Particularly attacked were The American Pageant, physics texts, and just plain "anything over three pages." - Ken and Steve

Where the Sidewalk Ends

You run breathlessly to the edge of the cliff. Its a long way down. You turn to face the fiend that chased you here.

"Application for First Year Student Admission" is printed across its horrible body. Faced with the choice of battling the beast or falling to a gruesome death, you leap from the cliff.

Stumbling out of bed, you take a moment to figure out where you are, and make sure that you're not in pieces at the bottom of a precipice. No! It's Saturday morning! Wonderful! You're thinking about how much you love Saturdays and deciding how to spend all your precious free time when it hits you: today is the day you set aside to begin your college applications. After plodding your way through your morning routine a bit slower than usual, you sit down in front of your typewriter and try to summarize your entire life and personality in the blanks provided.

"This form will decide my entire future," you tell yourself as you strain to remember what clubs you belonged to in the 9th grade. "Do they really need this much space for awards?" you ask yourself. It seems that there is nothing more humbling than a college application. But take heart noble senior! For once you've survived the dreaded essay, you can glide through the personal data sheet with ease, and the rest of the application flows smoothly. The monstrous beast shrinks to the size that you can shove into a large manila envelope. The task is done, and somehow, the senior gives a great sigh of relief, with the knowledge that his fate will no longer be decided by what he types on a Saturday morning.

Instead, it rests upon the whims of a complete stranger, and that's reassuring to us all.

Holy Cow, Batman

I am sitting in front of my television watching Batman reruns. My mouth drops open, aghast, at the wickedness of the villains. I cheer enthusiastically as the Caped Crusader beats up on such villains as Catwoman, the Joker, and the Penguin. ZAP! POW! BAM! Even though I seem to be the only person who spends his spare time in such pursuits, I am not alone. These fictitious characters were all named as favorite villains of the senior class. Also selected were Lady Macbeth, the Grinch, and Ursula (of Little Mermaid fame). Other truly evil favorites were Darth Vader, Satan, Khan, and Mr. Brissette (but we think he cast that vote himself).

National Pastime

The teacher's words droned in my ears. When I looked up at the board, the notes swam before my eyes. Without thinking, I picked up my pen and began to sketch a clever little stick figure. Now my little man had clothes and curly hair. Oh look, he's running. As I tired of my creation, I traced images of three dimensional abstract objects soaring over his head. Accurate copies of Disney characters skipped merrily through my notebook. In a few weeks, I would have enough pictures to make a full-fledged cartoon. But for now, I would have to content myself with just a single page. Startled by a distant buzzing noise, I realized that the bell had rung signifying the end of class. Hastily, I gathered up my belongings in one gigantic armload and stumbled into the hall. As I opened my locker to shove my books in, I murmured to myself, "Thank God for margins."

California Dreamin'

Daydreams comprise the better part of most classes for students. They serve as time-killers in the really boring subjects. We asked several seniors that ever popular daydreaming query: If you were stranded on a desert island, who would you want to be with? For girls, Kevin Costner, Tom Cruise, and Jean Claude Van Damme were popular choices. Among the guys, the Swedish Bikini team, blondes, and anyone who was a female were the most frequent selections. Apparently the girls are a lot more selective! Other interesting choices were Sherilyn Fenn, Keanu Reeves, and a home-grown stud, Chris Kelley. Of course several individuals remained loyal to their true loves, saying they would choose their girl or boyfriend. Keep Dreamin'!
