It's going to be a . . .

Long Presidency

The Freshman class picked the next president of the U.S. I would suggest a second opinion. A vast majority actually chose the traditional candidates in the lead Clinton, then Perot, and finally Bush. There were also more colorful suggestions, such as "Pee Wee Herman", "Mickey Mouse", "Saddam Hussein", "Bart Simpson", and racking up the charts was our very own principal Mr. Diprete. There is always a portion that picked themselves and some that don't even care. So come to your own conclusions on the voters of the future.

A short on . . .

Cartoon Strength

If we take a look when we sit down every Saturday morning and watch those funny cartoons, we remember Popeye and Mighty Mouse. When we asked the Freshmen who they think is stronger of the two, we got an outcome of Mighty Mouse at 36 and Popeye at 15. Mighty Mouse has double the votes so I guess that he has double the strength of Popeye. One person wasn't sure if it was a trick question or not, so they answered, "Is this a joke?" Well, it wasn't a joke, we were serious. That says something about us and our cartoon watchers.

What is a . . .

Plash?

Well, you shouldn't ask the Freshmen at CHS for an answer to that question. It is a splashing movement of water, the answers on the surveys by Freshmen were not even close to that definition. Some responses were, "a design of colors", "something you whip with", "splash without an 'S'", and "a stupid word that no one knows." Well, its not a stupid word but no one in the Freshmen class seems to know what it means. I wonder what answers the other classes wrote on the survey. To find out, check the other sections in this book.

Only a short . . .

24 hours

Well if you only had 24 hours to live, what would you do? The freshmen class has a very interesting imagination to what they would do with only one day of life left. A percentage of the freshmen would spend all their allowance money at the mall. But then, others would take themselves to the limit and, ride a bike off a cliff, or kill everyone they hated. Others would just relax in the usual way by sleeping. Praying was another response, but I don't think that will help. Why not spend it with your girlfriend or boyfriend, that was said by a few. I guess if it really came down to only being able to live another day, most wouldn't exactly know what to do.

The long day of the . . .

New Schedule

When Freshmen were asked what their view of the new schedule was. Most replied with, it's OK or it's fine. The others disliked it by saying it's confusing at first and it's stupid. Of course there is always those people who aren't sure or don't care about the schedule. Then one person wrote that it was fine, but they just wished that one subject a day could be dropped. Sounds pretty familiar huh, that was last years school year.

The long assignments of . . .

Freshmen Year

Two minutes left of class and suddenly the teacher blabs out two pages of homework. This year our schedule after school has been altered. We have to set more time aside for your work, and less time for fun. The work that has to be done in those short hours at night is a pain. And when you finally finish and start to relax, your parents ask, are you done with your homework? The next night is the same thing. Homework is always there, no matter how you ignore it, it always reappears. Homework is indestructible.

I feel bad for the freshmen. I really do. Here they are, pushed into a new school, with short passing times to traverse long hallways, with harder classes, and with three years' worth of former freshmen set to get revenge for what happened to them when they were freshmen. Maybe we should have pity on them. Maybe we should stop picking on them and yelling "FRESHMAN!" in their faces. Maybe you think I actually mean this. No such luck. So, until next year, they will just have to endure whatever torment we decide to inflict. After all, it's tradition.
Not A Freshman And Proud Of It

The freshmen year seems so short. No matter how bad a day you have, the next day is usually better. As a freshmen there are not as many stressful factors, such as college choice, the PSAT's, or the SAT's, not to mention they don't have application deadlines or honor courses. All in all I would like to be a freshmen for the rest of my life, but that is not only an impossibility, but it also looks bad on a applications to college and jobs. So don't think that this year is so bad, cause it gets a lot worse from here on out. Enjoy, relax, and be a freshmen for as long as you possibly can. H. Dwarf

A Short On Teaching

'93

They're big or small, short or tall, loud or quiet. But no matter what they are, they'll always be our faculty. Even though they load us down with tons of homework, projects, and papers; we still end up appreciating them at the end of the year. The one thing I can safely say about CHS faculty is that they are all individuals. Their individuality is what makes them so special, and what makes high school so memorable. Our teachers may be tough on us, but they form us into the people that we will leave this school as. -H. Dwarf

Yearbook

Yes that crazy little back room to the library is the Yearbook office. If you think the office is crazy, with it's permanent X-mas tree, special wallpaper (Far Side, Vegetables, etc.), and our own "deep thoughts", you should see the staff! The odd and the eccentric all seem to spend their afternoons at yearbook. One would wonder how any work gets done with the constant mayhem and uproar. But it does get done, in fact right now in your hand is the finished product. The "beast" is finally dead, though many things held it up, such as the copy discs eating themselves, vanishing film, underclass inserts, and the Will that wouldn't die. The staff did have it's fun, in and out of school, including several self proclaimed field trips to various establishments, such as Burger King, Meadowbrook Cinema, and our cavorting over several staff members houses. The staff has been enriched in the fined kinds of music, this includes The Doors, Stones, WBRU, Phantom of the Opera, and of course The Rocky Horror Picture Show. This year the staff has been involved in several school activities including having its own Homecoming float, and a skit in the Varsity Review. Over all this has been on odd year, and next year with the arrival of our Mac the deadlines should slide by, and the designs should grow even more unique. I would like to thank the hard hard work of the many people we have had on staff and doing the book. To the seniors leaving I wish you the best of luck in the future. Remember: Don't change, we like you the way you are!

A short on . . .

Whetstine

At the start of the school year, we walked into Mr. Whetstine's class, expecting to study dry history. You can depend on that, but you forget this is Mr. Whetstine. A class with him is something totally unique and enlightening. I mean, where else can you discuss Ronald Reagan, the bloody flux, and Marco Polo all in the same class period? Only in Whetstine's world could you ever find a broader horizon of history. Beware all serious students! This class is FUN!

Sure, we study the important stuff. It's the side-stories that really make life (past or present) interesting. For instance, did you know that Benjamin Franklin was REALLY the father of our country? He had over forty children?! Hmm . . . mind-boggling, huh? The whole class really gets into it, but of course there are the poor unfortunate souls who Mr. Whetstine uses IN his stories. It's amazing how we can instantly be transported to a time of the past and see that the way people lived back then was just as strange as it is now. It's just like one of those great long soap operas.

Anyone who's lucky (or unfortunate) enough to get the joyously thrilling class of Mr. Whetstine is in for both an informative but fun year. One warning: Always remember that GOD is a woman and writing epistles can be just cause for much slack!

Short Attention

Spans

A sick feeling enters your stomach as your English teacher says with oozing enthusiasm, "All right class. Today we enter the wonderful world of participial phrases! The lecture begins, but a haze drops over your eyes. Song lyrics and cartoon characters fill the dead space of your mind.

Suddenly, you snap back to the subject at hand, but slowly last night's phone conversation with your best friend creeps into your thoughts.

A classmate nudges you to see if you're breathing. The teacher has asked you a question. You mumble a hasty answer, not even paying attention long enough to see if it's correct, and lapse once again into a conscious coma. It is rudely interrupted by a loud buzzing noise. Your mental remote flips the channel once more to the real world. Class is over. Well, that wasn't too bad? In fact, it was a record. That was the most attention you ever paid in class before! Maybe you even remembered something! Wow! But don't get too comfortable! History's next!

Long Days & ...

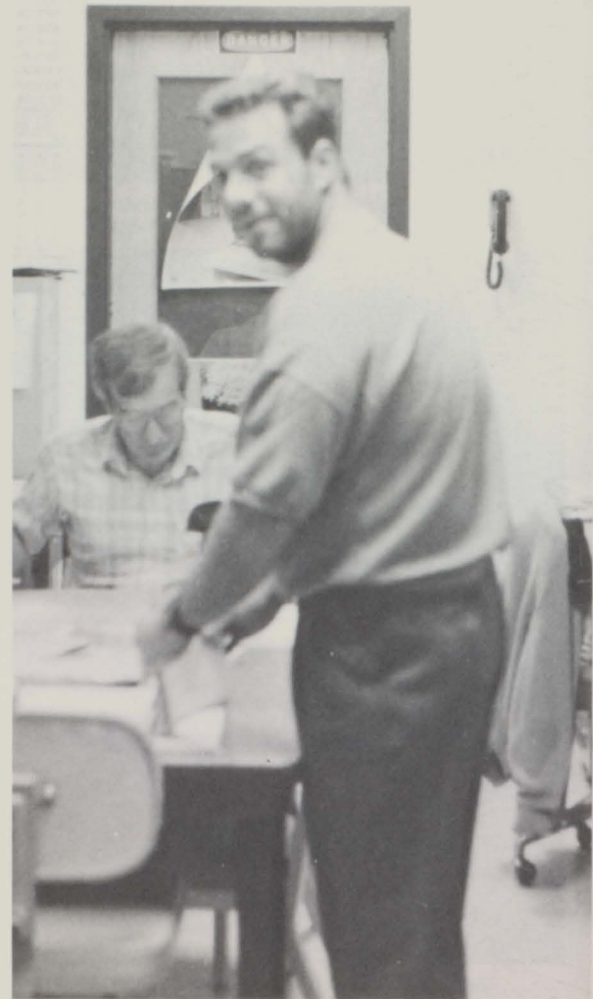

Short Nights

For most students that attend Coventry High, a typical day begins around 6:00 am. This twilight hour is when the onslaught of morning rituals commences, such as showering, picking out the outfit for the day, styling their hair, and maybe, just maybe eating breakfast because they are so hardpressed for time. Then comes the dreary ride to school, sometimes aboard a large, dirty, yellow limousine. When they do arrive they encounter an endless wait for homeroom, but sometimes the wait is not endless enough. In that case, they have to go through a very tedious process of paperwork while facing the fellow late-stricken students.

Homeroom is a time for last minute homework, naps and gossip time. As the day wears and tears on the students as they go from class to class, the homework builds and builds like the construction on Tiogue Avenue. By the time school is over it seems like there is more work to do at home than what was accomplished at school, if that is possible. This large amount of homework already can keep a student at work well after 9:00 or 10:00 and if there are any extra projects a lot of time kids are forced to pull all nighters. Sometimes they have to face the fearsome monster, known better as the dreaded "term paper". This draining predicament does not seem right because it impairs our abilities and accelerates our stress-levels. And people wonder why teenagers are prone to mono. Well now they know!

In The Long Haul

Oaker sports have their longs and shorts. We are extremely long on spirit and team work, and even though at times we may be a little short of achieving a win or championship, we still give it our best shot. One characteristic of Oaker sports is our drive of never giving up, no matter how bad the outlook, or record is. A perfect example of this drive is our Football team who this year won the Super Bowl. Most of all we congratulate this year's teams on their hard work, and wish the best of luck to the future teams. -H. Dwarf

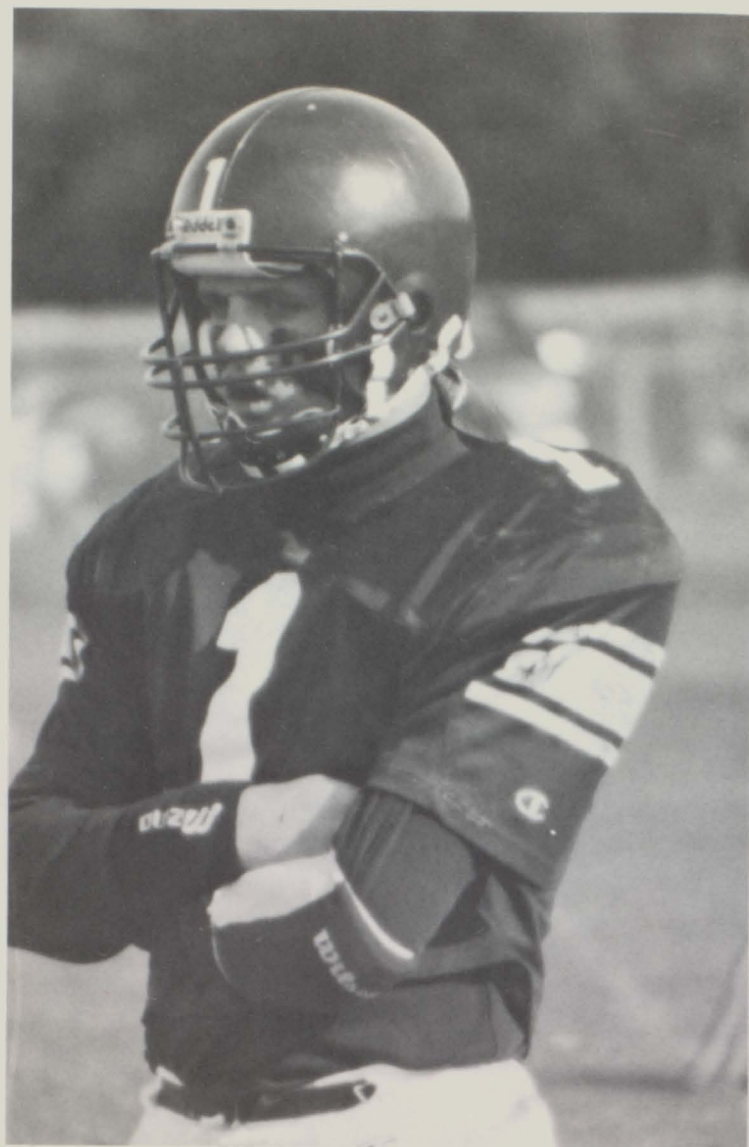

Sports

Superbowl

Champs!

The Coventry Oakers once again proved that they were the most dominant team in their division, in the State and in the history of Coventry High School. Their crushing defensive squad held their opponents scoreless for most of the season, while their extraordinary offensive squad rolled over their opponents. The defensive squad was recognized throughout the state as one of the most awesome and four players were selected as the Channel 6 player of the week. Scott Pietrzyk, Steve Toole, Mike Tucciarone, and Kevin Clarke led the team through a undefeated season. One of the highlights of the season was the Homecoming Game. The stingy defense shut out the Bristol Colts; while the bruising offense raked up 31 points. With his incredible arm Mike Volker, led the multi-talented offense. Lon Hall and Eddy Jenks anchored the defense and proved to be formidable objects for the opponents offense to get around. The Oakers crushed the Wizards of West Warwick in the annual Thanksgiving Game, dominating the Grid-Iron from kick-off to final whistle. The Oakers rolled on to complete an undefeated season and a berth in the Super Bowl. The Oakers opponent in the Super Bowl was St. Raphael's, one of the few teams to dent the Oaker defense in the regular season. In a bruising game, the Oakers won their first Super Bowl victory by thoroughly trouncing their opponent. A season that dreams were made of - Oakers 93.

Champs!

This year's Coventry High School boys' soccer team sprinted miraculously through the season to make it to the 1-B South Championships. The Oakers had an excellent season ending with 13-3-2 record. The mighty senior captains, Ben Shear, Rick Frigon, Chris Cummings, and Doug Pion led the rest of the team through an exciting season of high contention games. In the tough game against Shea, our boys conquered their almost equal opponents with a close score of 3-2. Against Mt. St. Charles, the awesome Varsity team won by a large margin of goals, 5-0. Three players made all-state, Rick Frigon and Ben Shear to the first team and Doug Pion to the second team. In the end, the Oaker soccer players never threw in the towel and continued through all the sweating, drenching matches with all their tremendous kicks, throw-ins, and goals.

Lady Oakers Boot Their Way to

Semi-finals

This year the girl's soccer team played their most successful season in Coventry High School's history. They were victorious in defeating their numerous opponents and making their way to the play-offs by scoring many goals and having an active defense. In the quarter finals, they played an excellent game against Ponagansett. With well-devised and executed strategies the solidly prepared players managed to keep the score tied at 2-2. Great amounts of hard work and dedication brought the Lady Oakers successfully to the semi-finals. Led by senior captains Katie Jo Henchir, Stephanie Seidel, and Brenda Robertson this season is one they will remember. The excellent female kickers beat Chariho but unfortunately lost a bone-crushing game to East Greenwich 3-1.

Hopefully, as proven by the rest of the Knotty Oakers, the Lady Oakers have the stamina to fight their way to the play-offs next year and emerge triumphant.

Oakers Spike to State

Championships

This year also proved to be yet another exiting year for the boys volleyball team. They successfully reached the semi-final in the state championships. Our Oaker boys graciously hosted another amazing tournament with various teams from all over the region and Canada. The awe inspiring players not only accomplished all this, but also only sustained two losses all year long.

The Oakers were led by senior captains Brent Lapointe, Craig Marcotte, and Remy Guidry. The talented underclass members, Ray Nalette, Chris Curran, and Jay Magnan proved they will be strong contenders for years to come. This contention was also demonstrated by the J.V. team winning the state championship.

This year also marked the end to an epoch of winning leadership with the loss of coach Ms. Sutton. Future teams mourn the great loss. Good luck to the future team next season.

Oaker runners make the long haul to the

Finish Line

In the 1992 fall season the Coventry Boys' Cross-Country team had a solid 3 and 9 record, which unfortunately did not reflect the tremendous change in direction the team has made. For the first time in five years, a full freshmen team participated in intense competition. Also, for the first time in many seasons the team has had no senior members. However, the team membership and participation increased by an incredible 125%. This year's outstanding Coventry team captains were Derek Oberg, Don Dunning, and Matt LaBranche. With this renewed interest from underclassmen, Coach Labutti hopes that next season our mighty Oakers will make it to the championship.

The long trek to

Second Place

The 1992 girls cross country team, under the superb leadership of Mr. Soscia, captured second place in the Southern Division. The awe inspiring senior captains Robyn Volpini, and Erica Horlbogen, as well as junior captian, Mikaela Lagor led the team through the long miles to accomplish a very successful season. To prepare for the meets, the girls trained six days a week for about two hours a day. Mr. Soscia trailed the panting girls in his truck, shouting inspirational words as the training Lady Oakers ran their usual five mile course during practice sessions. The fierce competitions drove the girl runners to excel when it came time for the two and a half mile contests. The team was doing well all season, but at mid-season, a freshmen, Beth Paronto, joined the team, and increased the positivity of the season. With her incredible ability, Paronto quickly became a star. The future of the Lady Oaker runners should be even better than the last two successful seasons. This is due to the talented freshmen, who will be on the team for years to come. Good luck to the team next season.

Swinging Lady Oaker

Aces

The 1992 girls tennis season was a rebuilding year for the Knotty Oaker ladies. The Senior captains Kim Magnam and Julie Seltsam put in an encouraging effort to serve the intimidating opponents crushing defeats. Underclass singles players such as Alyson Langlois, Adrienne Rupp, and Lisa Macumber accelerated their tennis skills this season. The many newcomers on the double teams held their own to be successful this season and look as possible terminators next season. Although the 1992 season wasn't their best so far, they still gave an excellent effort to improve and earned the respect of their opponents, plus their school for their sheer determination in the face of defeat. Hopefully, the well practiced underclassmen of this year can bring this spirit to next season and make it to the playoffs.

Oakers shoot and score

Third Place

The boys basketball team for 1992 finished the year with a 13 and 12 record. The mighty Oaker boys ended up in third place in class A action. They successfully reached the Quarterfinals in the state playoffs. Late season injuries unfortunately burnt the young Oakers' chances for total victory. They were led by amazing senior co-captains Mike Tucciarone and Ryan McDermott. Other seniors that played their last glorious game for the red and white included Steve Carroll, Remy Guidry, Brent Lapointe, and Tom Vincent. The Oakers are looking forward to next season with three outstanding underclassmen returning: John Gallogly, Chris Curran, and Jay Magnum. The team was excellently led by their coach, Ted Szymkowicz.

The big dunk to

Second Position

Finishing in second position, in the class A division-South, the Lady Oakers had a very successful season. Even though the Lady Oakers were a young team, they used their height and speed to their advantage. Rebounding being a major factor in game strategy, the Lady Oakers were led by Cathy Castenson, Emily Nester, Maggie Guidry, and Lisa Horlbogen. The excellent fast breaks and ball handling were controlled by Sue Lynch, Meleah Hall, and Beth Paronto. One of the high points of this year's season was defeating arch-rival West Warwick, 51-37. With the record of 10-6, the Lady Oakers tied for second place, allowing them a spot in the play-offs. After beating Bay View in the first round of play-offs, the Lady Oakers ended the season with a heartbreaking loss to Smithfield in the quarterfinals. Having all the team members returning next year, the Lady Oakers are sure to be preseason favorites.

Oakers pin all to the mat to capture

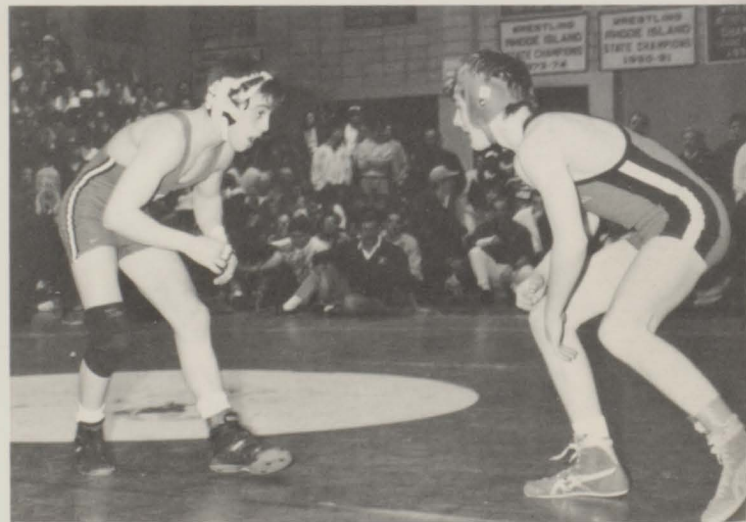

12th State Crown

This years Oaker boys carried home their 12th state championship crown in a row. Head coach Rob Smith trained the young recruits for long hours to produce the he-men that crushed all other schools in the state. At the Rhode Island Wrestling Championship, held in our own C. Arthur Flori Gymnasium, the mighty Oakers used immense strength and stamina to conquer their opponents. With points totaling above the rest, the team owes much credit to Bill Brzoza, Ed Jencks, and Dan Bukrgohan as they took first place honors. Brzoza, all 189 pounds of him, used both brains and brawn to gain the gold medal in his weight class. Ed Jencks, the well loved heavyweight, wrestled against his opponents and their reputations to receive his first ever individual state championship. Finally, in a surprise win over the West Warwick top seed, Dan Burjohan crushed his opponent in a thrilling 6-2 victory. But in the shadow of these tremendous conquests, lay several players that may not have won first place but made the Oaker victory possible. Runner-up honors winners Chhy Mao and Aaron Becker earned their spot at the New England Tournament, while Alberto Stenton and Chris Case scored 285 points that put the Oakers over the top. At the New England Tournament in Chelmsford, Massachusetts, our proud boys placed an honorable fourth place. Ed Jencks took first place in his division, while Brzoza took a close second in his. This capped a great season!

Long Fun Hours

When the students at CHS are not doing school work, they fill the long hours with many different activities. The numerous clubs give the students a place to relax, while picking up valuable group effort and leadership techniques. Dances, projects, field trips, fundraisers, and celebrations are all organized by the different clubs and groups of the school. Then there are those clubs which go into competition, that bring the school quite a bit of recognition. Those clubs include the Math League, the Debate Team, the Academic Decathlon Team, and even the Yearbook. As is evident by the different activities, CHS students have a lot to do after school as well as during.

Student life

A Long . . .

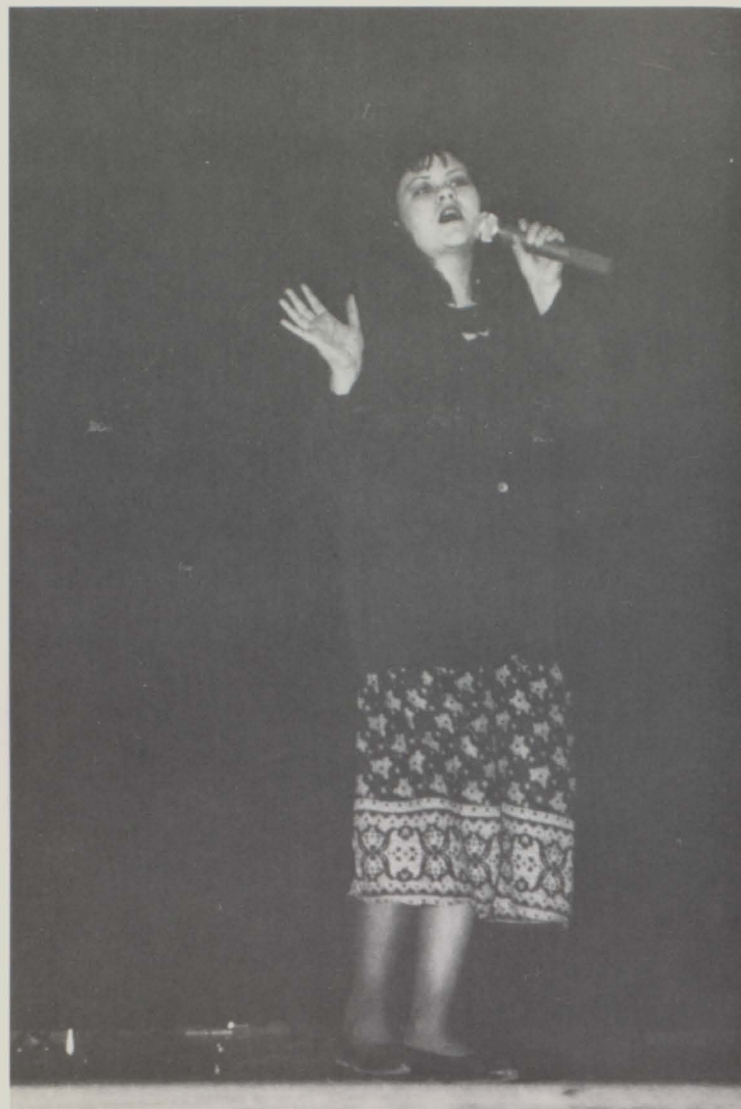

Night Out

This year's Varsity Revue showcased many talented students. The show's theme was "Out All Night" with nearly twenty acts participating. Several highlights included the many dancers, which included a solo by Sharlene Papa and the couples, skits, such as Sister Act, musical groups, such as Nemesis Child and the Jazz Ensemble, and the singers like Kristen Nester and Jill Fisher.

This year's cast made the Varsity Revue a show to remember. Sponsored by the CHS Student Council, strong leadership was delivered by directed by Dawn Papa and she was helped by the many people that worked behind the scenes, such as Hilary Caldow (program designer) and Tracy Klein (assistant director). Senior assistance also came from Liisa Knight and Kerri Fitzpatrick. Another essential factor to the success of the show was the sound systems and lights.

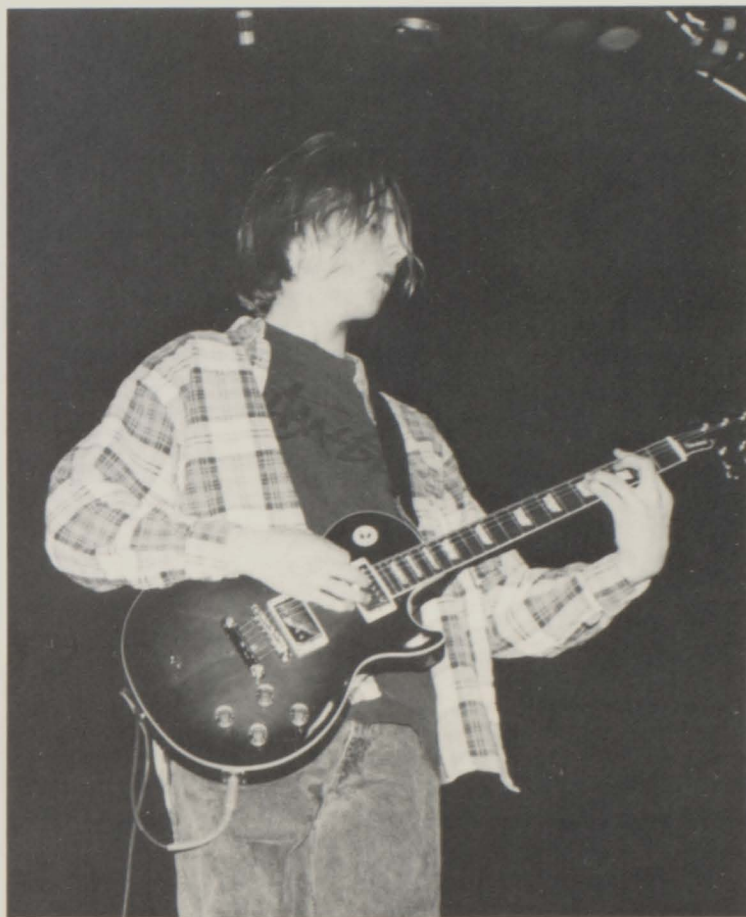

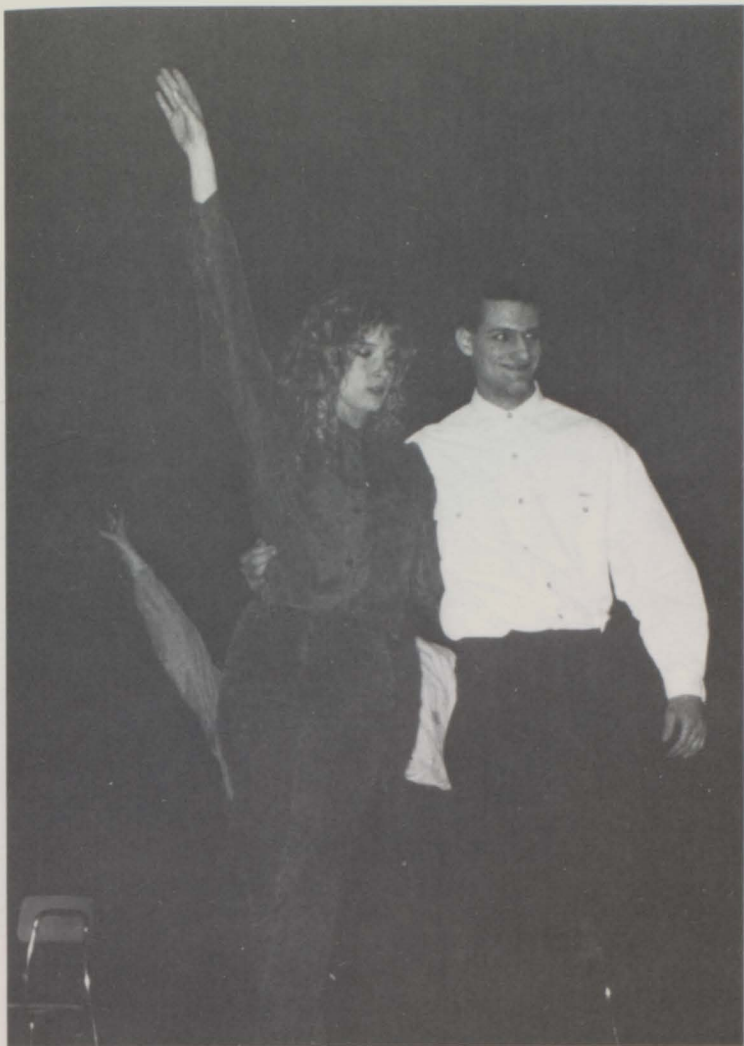

Emceed by Greg Lafond and Melissa Hall, the show always proved interesting. Another helpful group was the stage crew, led by the stage manager Kerri Fitzpatrick and assistant Beth Robertson. The almost ten member crew provided the behind the curtain action.

The Varsity Revue is a full scale production involving many factors from the acts to the directors, it always manages to come together at the end. As always a popular event that happens annually, we cannot wait until next year.

Learning by doing is the key to . . .

DECA

DECA is a national association of marketing students. Through DECA, students learn business, management, & personal skills. Coventry High's DECA chapter was very active, completing a record 7 chapter projects & 28 individual written projects. Students learn how to do a market research project, to develop a marketing plan, & how to start up a small business. November, DECA sponsored Coventry's first Clean-A-Thon. The objective of this project was two-fold: to increase school pride, & to raise money for Rhode Island's children's Hospital. Seniors Heather Larivee, Allison Stetkiewicz, & Mandy Kelley served as project coordinators for the project. 200 hundred volunteers helped by cleaning the school & grounds and $1,800 was donated to the hospital's construction committee as a result. Also during November & throughout December, DECA members implemented their nationally recognized "Christmas Project" for the needy of the community. The project managers Robin Costible & Laura Neilson were able to obtain over $60,000 worth of gifts for the area's needy families. February was AIDS awareness month, & project leaders Cindy Pride, Kendra Dahlin, & Andy Ward implemented a public relations project to inform the student body of the facts concerning the AIDS epidemic. Chapter president, Josue Calzada completed one of DECA's most demanding individual projects, a project on free enterprise. Josue used puppets to teach small children of the benefits of free enterprise. His first place project earned him a trip to Orlanda, Florida for national competition & $200 in prize money from Phillips Petroleum. Throughout the school year, DECA members learn business & management skills through operating the school store. Students decide what merchandise to sell, what price to sell, what price to sell the products, how to promote the goods, & decide their work hours. Coventry DECA has a proud history.

The Italian Club presents:

The Befana

During the holiday season the Italian Club hosted a potluck supper for over three hundred students, friends, and family. The cafeteria was festively decorated for this annual occasion. Everyone was in a holiday mood as they ate, talked and awaited the beginning of an original play performed in Italian entitled "The Befana". This play describes how the Good Christmas Witch brings presents to Italian children on January 6 instead of December 25th, as we do in the United States. The play points out one of the cultural differences between Italy and our nation. The following cast members, all second year Italian Students, participated in this annual event: Jessica Suraski, narrator; Matthew Gagliano, Matthew Cotnoir, and Matthew Franchina, Wisemen; Merton Greene, Padre; Melissa Gabrielle, Madre; Julie Catanzaro, Tina; Harmony Conti, Paola; Adrianne DiPetrillo, "La Checko, the vice president, introduced the play. Reach Out Reach Out is an opportunity for all students, both with and without handicaps to share quality time together doing a variety of many different things. The Reach Out Program here at Coventry High School has encouraged hundreds and hundreds of high school students to get involved in, not only their school, but also in their community by becoming advocates for students who cannot necessarily always advocate for themselves. Students in Reach Out assist students with developmental disabilities in a variety of ways: as a volunteer tutor in the classroom, in Special Olympics Unified Sports, as a partner on school day activities or field trips, and even overnights. And most importantly the students act as a true friend to each other.

WCVY

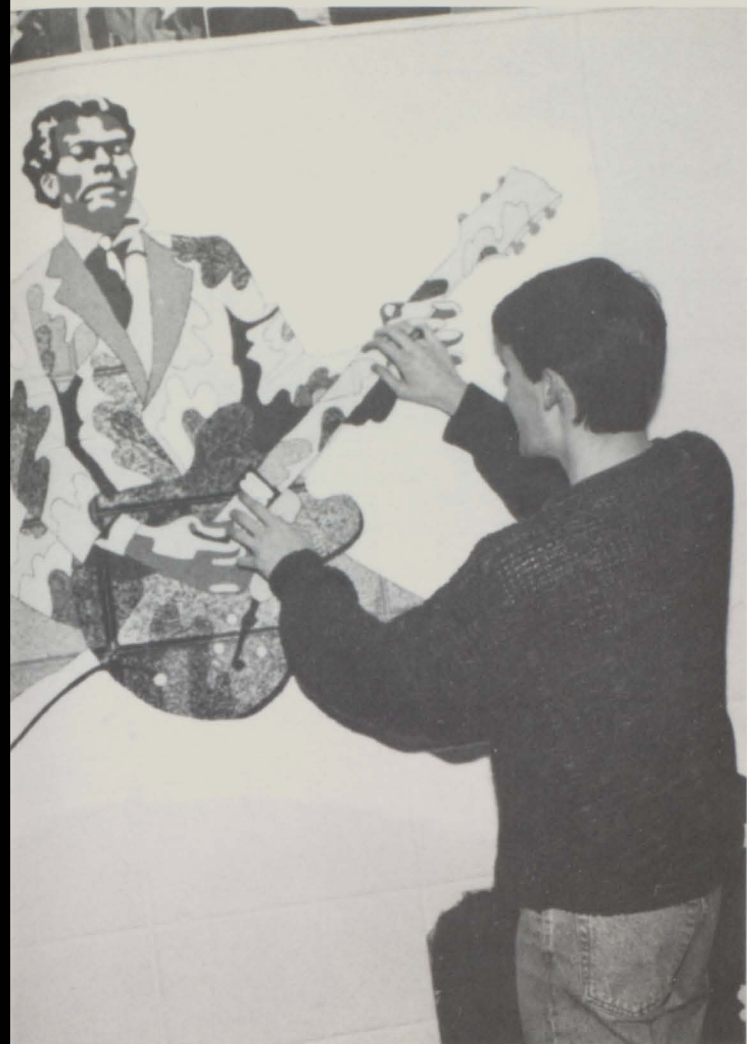

Tucked away in what used to be a janitor's room, CHS students faithfully run Rhode Island's only high school radio station, FM 91.5 WCVY. The station is on the air every weekday from 2-10 pm, playing all requests and dedications. To the uninitiated, a radio station seems to be a source of unlimited power and hours of endless fun, but it's not all a 'Bed of Roses'. Disc Jockeys are forever putting up with hearing 'I Will Always Love You' 50 times a day, and countless more people calling up for the sappiest songs known to man in a typical whining voice. Still, being a DJ puts you 'in the know' on the latest music trends (They've been listening to Pearl Jam long before Eddie Vedder was a thought in Shadow Steven's head). Truly, WCVY is Rock & Roll at its best ... or worst, depending on your 'prerogative.

Psychology

Psychology students at CHS are doing a lot more than the usual essays and exams this years. Along with their in-class curriculum, the students will be participating in community service projects. The program, now in its third year, was started by Mrs. Cyr, the social studies department head at CHS. Students are required to do thirty hours of community service work over the course of 2 semesters. As their work progresses, the students log their experiences in a journal that is handed in for a grade. At the conclusion of the assignment, the psych students, who are all members of the senior class, write an essay that connects their work and experiences to psychological principles learned in class. The program has greatly expanded since its inception in 1990. Almost 200 students in 5 psych classes are currently taking part in a wide variety of community service activities, from volunteering at the Coventry Health Center to coaching a basketball team in the local town league. The program received an added boost last year when CHS was named the recipient of a $25,000 Alan Shawn Feinstein grant. The money will assist the psych teachers in implementing the community service program. Mrs. Cyr started the program because she feels that community service can be a vital part of the adolescence experience, teaching several redeeming qualities as well as being a practical application to psychological principals learned in class. Through community service, students will learn a little more about life outside of the classroom in the "real world".

The Long and the Short

Of It

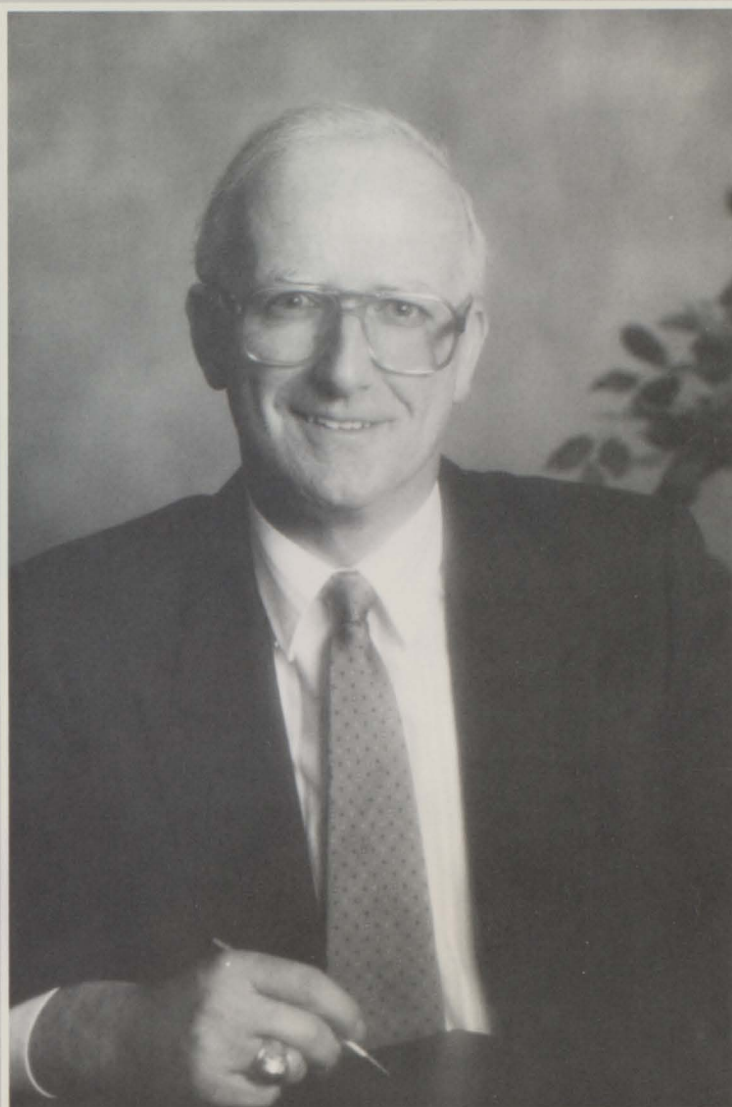

Coventry High School is a varied community. Our school is comprehensive, which means we offer a wide and varied range of subjects, sports, and activities. There is something here for everyone and almost everyone takes advantage of what we have to offer. Our student body, which numbers some 1,700 students, come from almost every economic and social background. We have a diversity of nationalities and cultures, each making their special contribution to create that blend which we call the Oaker atmosphere. They claim that the '90's is the decade of multi-culturalism, if that is true, Coventry High School is the place to be, because we have it all!

Enjoy Your Retirement.

James A. DiPrete

is indeed a pleasure to congratulate each of you in your graduation from Coventry High School. This single and important event will be an unforgettable milestone as you end one very secure part of your life and education and commence upon a path more exciting, challenging and yet so much less sure. While none of us is ever totally ready for what the future will bring, it is my hope that your educational experiences gained here at C.H.S. will provide you with some of the skills and knowledge you will need not only to confront problems in your daily life but also to prepare you for a continuation of education which each of you will so sorely need in this quickly changing and shrinking world.

While no one will question the importance of technology and the need for lifelong education, it seems to me that your accomplishments and success will mean very little unless they are rooted in strong values. The fact that your high school's tradition is based on the oak tree should tell us something about why Coventry High School students are called "Oakers". Above all, oak trees come in many interesting varieties; they have long life, have been revered through the ages and are known for their strength. I wish each of you a long and happy life. One in which you will persevere, achieve and always be thankful for the many kindnesses given by your family, teachers, and friends. Further, I wish you a life full of true love and peace.

As this marks my twenty-first and final senior Knotty Oak message as principal, let me say that I am as proud of you as the thousands of other "Oakers" I have known and served. Congratulations and may God bless you all.

May God Bless and Keep You Always. May Your Wishes All Come True. May You Always Do for Others, and Let Others Do for You. May You Build a Ladder to the Stars, Climb on Every Rung, and May You Stay, Forever Young. May Your Hands Always be Busy. May Your Feet Always Be Swift. May You Have a Strong Foundation, When the Winds of Changes Shift. May Your Heart Always Be Joyful. May Your Song Always Be Sung. And May You Stay . . . Forever Young.

All Our Love,

Alison Brockway

although high school formally ends with graduation, memories of family, friends, and personal accomplishments will be yours to cherish forever. Your hard work and perseverance in equestrian events won you three New England Horsemen's Council Welsh Pleasure Championships and retirement of a challenge trophy. Your self-reliance and confidence as a rider and trainer lead to several Rhode Island Horsemen's Association hunter reserve championships. In college, these qualities will enable you to meet new challenges in academics and in furthering your equestrian pursuits at the NCAA or intercollegiate level. As poet, Rod McKuen once wrote "Tomorrow is the first day of the rest of your life."

Go for it!

Congratulations,

Mom and Dad.
