For Every End ...

It may sound old fashioned, but it's true; for every end there IS a beginning. We may not see it right away, but it's there. These four short years at Coventry High School contain many ends for a student yet they are also full of beginnings. Some are obvious-the end of one class means the beginning of another. Some are a little harder to see. High school means the end of dependency and the beginning of self-reliance.

No matter how much we may not want things to end, they do. But, there is good news. We can always look forward to a new beginning. For instance, we never look forward to the end of summer, but just think of the new school year coming. Perhaps this is a better example. One of those times when we look forward to both the end and the beginning. Everyone likes the end of the school year but even better is thought of a summer with nothing to do all day long.

The end of last year's school term not only marked the end of one class's high school era but also the end of . . .

There's a Beginning

... Mr. Diprete's twenty-one year career at Coventry High School. There is no looking back or clinging to the past, we have a new freshmen class and a new principal just beginning their high school careers.

As you can see, life is full of beginnings and endings. Just the ones we face in school would fill the pages of War and Peace. For example, if a book has an end it had to have had a beginning. When you reach the end of one chapter, you have the beginning of another. The end of a test could mean the beginning of failure or (Hopefully) the beginning of an "A". Then of course, the end of one day leads to the beginning of another.

For the class of 1994, this is the end of high school, but the beginning of the rest of their lives as well as many more beginnings and endings. The seniors move on to a more vivid world one called life. Who knows, some day the end of the world could bring a whole new beginning.

The Immortal Canker Worm

New World Order

When the students sauntered through the doors of CHS this year, a changed world awaited. Peace exists in the middle east. Experiments to push further away from communism are in the works. President Clinton proposed his national health care plan. Mr. Deasy replaced Mr. Diprete as principal.

Out with the old and in with the new. Along with Mr. Deasy came a flood of changes. Is this the same CHS? Abolished was the 7 period day. The Oakers gave a great cheer as the 6 period schedule was pulled out of the circular file. Gone are the days of suffering through all of the classes with every teacher. Now with a dropped class, there's more time for everything from slaving over horrific English exams to dozing off in physics. Lunch doesn't seem to be year's away — it sneaks up on unsuspecting students. Take, for instance, the new confusing bell system. Oakers ask, "Are we coming or going!?" when the three different bells sound. "Retreat" is the picture when students leave the cafeteria, and challenging "people jams" block the doors to those who try to

The new freshmen class transformed CHS. Crowded classes and standing-room-only in the cafeteria are just two of the problems caused by such a big class. An Oaker can't even get into trouble without running into part of the new regime. The Vice Principal's office has disappeared! Is it a miracle? NO! Now the Assistant Principals are looking over our shoulders waiting to pounce. Watch out or social suspension will cut off the fun stuff about school . . .

Even with all of the changes made this year, CHS is still a great place to learn, have fun, and hang out. With upperclassmen leading the way, the 93-94 school year will be a blast! Make way for Mr. Deasy, the class of '94, and a new CHS! This is an ever changing, crazy group of Oakers to match an ever-changing, crazy world. These small changes may seem small, but they are significant. As the song goes, "These times they are a changing".

Seniors

Advisor: Mrs. Denise Collins will be on her solo debut as senior class advisor this year. In past years this position was held by Mrs. Nancy Cyr. Mrs. Collins helped Mrs. Cyr the last few years to get the feel for the job. This year will be a new start for seniors at CHS, but we all know that Mrs. Collins will do a great job.

This group of hard working seniors will be helping out the class president and officers to set up the important events of senior year, such as the Christmas dance, the ball, senior supper, class day, and other senior tasks.

President: Amy Gallo

The senior class president has the weight of the entire senior class sitting upon her shoulders, and what a weight that is, considering that there are almost 400 students in the senior class. Amy is in charge of getting together the Christmas dance with the junior class, the ball, senior supper, class day, and even gets the privilege of shaking hands with every single one of the graduates who walk across the stage. Amy plans on taking the role of leader seriously, and hopes to make the year memorable.

The class officers work along with the president, and social committee, and as a team they form the senior year into a long lasting memory, which will be imprinted onto the minds of all the senior class members. This last year, which is full of victories, and yes, failures is left in the hands of these competent seniors.

Unforgettable

This junior prom was definitely "Unforgettable". The night was perfect, for once there was a prom with an abundance of room including on the dance floor. The junior prom was held at the beautiful Rhodes on the Pawtuxet. The hall which we were in was gorgeous and even had a balcony overlooking the dance floor. Even though the first ballots for prom queen were lost the night went smoothly. Everyone was happy and having a great time, just as long as no one jumped near the DJ, or else the music would skip.

One of the amazing things about this dance was that the food was actually edible! In fact it was extremely good, but of course it was the ever prom food of stuffed chicken. The music definitely fit the personality of our class. Every time the Rock Lobster came on, it was played three times, the group of brave juniors in gowns and tuxes, who actually got out on the floor (literally) grew larger and larger. Then, of course the junior class sort of theme song "YMCA" was played. Then it was flashback to the 70's with "Staying Alive". It was time to clear the floor and crown the King and Queen. The junior class picked for their King and Queen, Greg Hammond and Sue Lynch. After the crowning the King, Queen and their dates got to lead the rest of the class to the song "Unforgettable". This night will be remembered for a long time.

Jessie Denuccio sits enraptured in class, she is either trying for an "A" or one of CHS's extremely hot substitutes are teaching.

Jason Adams trying to count those little tiny annoying ticker tape dots, from the infamous lab in physics class.

Jaime Gauvin and Jacqlyn Robitaille are doing what seniors do best, that is relaxing. Yeah right! Any of us seniors know that breaks like in this picture are welcomed with open arms.

Jaime Windrow, one of our football cheerleaders works on the cheerleading float.

Beth Macko, Heidi Bates, and Mike Voelker ride on the senior float down the parade route to the school cheering.

Jonathan Bourn does not seem to be paying attention to the teacher, but actually scoping or checking out some hot babe across the room.

Paul Blanchette to help psyche up his team puts on some Oaker war paint and streamers. Unfortunately, Paul will not be playing due to his arm being in a cast.

Amy Reichstetter and Matthew Richardson are diligently working on some sort of master plan. Should we be scared.

Mr. Piascik tests one of the many strange and unusual psychological theories on Kim Casto, as Kimberly Shanley watches on intently.

Michelle Blade obviously laughing because she is going insane from the infamous ticker tape lab from physics class.

Dan Garthwaite looking rather spirited in his CHS football team jersey, is in one of the industrial technology rooms. Dan is one of the football players for the CHS team.

Andrew Edwards gives a mischievous smile to the camera as he slyly hides his own personnel reading under the notebook.

Our Small World

The history of the class of '94

September 9, 1990 signified the beginning of our journey through Coventry High School. As freshmen, we were awestruck by the size of the student population. Remember the days of sharing lockers, and the two up and down stairways (it only took 10 minutes to get to class). This was the year that the back parking lot was still dirt. We were constantly disturbed by the building of the new wing. To lead us through our initiation year, we elected Jaime Nash as class president. During Spirit Week, we were annihilated by the upperclassmen. We had a lot to learn. We were also forced to decipher the twisted numbering system of the classrooms. And speaking of twisted, remember when we had E period lunch every single day, except for Day 7? The day of the Freshmen Dance, which was May 31st, was a tumultuous one, due to one of the worst food fights in our school's history, one of the many casualties was a certain freshmen who was doused with a tub of ketchup. The dance itself, which was decorated with stars, moons, and leftover food, was a success, despite the fact of horrendous lines for pictures. Our freshmen year proved to be an exposition for the years to follow.

As we emerged into our sophomore year we began to establish more of our class identity. Matthew Emerson Weinand, who desperately wanted to join our class, was chosen as class president. Mr. Brissette became our sophomore advisor, his first attempt advising the masses. The opening of the new wing brought an end to our cafeteria studies and opened more stairways. Also, our schedule was changed to a fully rotating one. The courseload of sophomore year increased with difficulty, due to Honors classes. We were introduced to the hell of test-taking with our first attempt at the PSAT. Our school became frenzied with the football team's victories and Superbowl game. The team signed their success by shaving their heads. Other sports, such as boys soccer and wrestling, also attained state titles. Our second attempt at Spirit Week was a bit more triumphant, moving from a freshmen 4th place finish to 2nd place. Thanks to the many participants in the weeks activities which included Catherine Mageau's rendition of "Puff the Magic Dragon", complete in full dragon costume, and Weinand's lacking rendition of a Mary Poppins favorite. Due to an electrical fire in the auditorium on the first nice spring day, school was dismissed early. Sophomore year was the beginning of the end and the end of the beginning.

Junior year was a year of high expectations and low standards. Yet again, our schedules were changed to a 7-period day and Matt was elected president, again. As juniors, we received the privilege of the lockers in the new wing, which were twice the size of the old ones. Classes continually got harder, and added stress. But some of our woes were erased when we finally received our licenses, our version of freedom. The almighty football team that came so close to winning the Super Bowl the previous year were finally able to sink their claws into the supreme victory of winning the Super Bowl. This was our first year to start attending formal dances as a class. The Christmas Dance, which was called "Under the Mistletoe", was held for the first time at the 1025 Club. Despite the rubber chicken, the night was a memorable one. Our third attempt at Spirit Week found us locked into 2nd place again. Before we knew it, the biggest event of the year, the Junior Prom, had arrived on April 30th. For the first time, the prom was held at the beautiful Rhodes on the Pawtuxet. Our prom king and queen were Greg Hammond and Sue Lynch. The theme was "Unforgettable" and the night certainly was as we danced the night away to favorites like "YMCA", "Rock Lobster", and other class favorites. Unfortunately, we had to say our farewells to Mr Diprete, our beloved principal. As the end of the school year approached, it was our time to say good-bye to the seniors and welcomed our senior year. This culminated on June 10th, Class Day, when we turned our class rings and became seniors. To sum it all up; our junior year was just one big trip.

Our senior year started off with high anticipation. Soon we found ourselves drowning in an endless sea of college applications, SATs, scholarships, financial aids, as well as our normal courseload. Our year began with many changes, such as our new principal, Mr. Deasy and a new schedule. Amy Gallo was elected president to guide us through our final year. Also, it was Mrs. Collins' solo year of advising the senior class. For sports, the girls soccer team triumphed with their first ever state title. Once again we were subjected to rubber chicken at our Christmas Dance, which was called "Visions of Sugarplums". The dance was packed, but there still was enough room to get down on the dance floor (literally). Time passed quickly, and we found ourselves deciding our futures. The Senior Ball was held at the Newport Marriot, in May, which being our last formal dance together, it was an everlasting night to be forever etched in our memories. We gathered at the Senior Supper, to get our caps and gowns as well as our yearbooks. Class Day, which was June 9th, was our last day to say good-bye to our high school days. Class Day was full of tears, laughs, and sad remembrances. Graduation at the Warwick Musical Theater signified our rite of passage into reality. No longer could we take comfort and feel secure in the hallowed halls of Coventry High School. At the ceremony, we obtained our diplomas, and pulled together as a class for the last time. With the end of this ceremony, so ended our time together. The Class of '94 are now off on their own, to pursue their own dreams. The Class of '94 will always remain alive in spirit.

Above: Jenn Boisclair is illustrating the proper way to enjoy gym. Jenn is playing the ever popular senior sport of volleyball, or walleyball or rafterball, as the case may be.

Above: Kim Casto puts on a happy face, she must be happy to be at school, yeah right! More like she is on a sugar high from those Spree candies that she is popping down. I'm sure if I was her teacher I would just be thrilled with her enthusiasm.

Above: Melissa Cambell gives a hesitating smile for this picture. Obviously not a lover of photographs. But really Melissa a little more enthusiasm on your part would be greatly appreciated.

Right: Scott Haggerty, Chris Case, and Joe Strauss order a large pizza with onions, peppers, and extra anchovies, oh and have that bikini weenie lady deliver it. Oh you do deliver to classrooms don't you? Obviously these guys know what they want and just how to get it too.

Above: Richard Kelley is looking like he is going to break this camera to pieces or like he is very confused. While in back of him looking equally as confused, is Jon Lussier, sampling one of the fine eats which can be purchased at the school store.

Left: Jason "Bubba" Stevens is totally pleased in this picture, you want to know why? Easy he found someone to stand in this picture with him who is shorter then him.

Above: Lisa Pavo is taking a leisurely stroll through the hallway during passing time. This is one of the few luxuries which seniors seem to possess. They can walk as slow as they want to class, and still make it to class on time, and if not so what!

Above: Cheryl Bequette is scoping out the lunchroom, undoubtedly trying to find a seat in the always crowded cafeteria. Either that or she is just checking out the babes sitting at the lunch table.

Above: Jen Ryan, Dave Rull, and Nicole D'Brosca goofing off in the senior hallway. I mean what else is there for seniors to do? Besides that is study take tests, and have all the strains of school plus college applications!

Kimberly Vanover, loaded down heavily with the gifts for the needy, pitches in to help out in DECA's annual Christmas project.

Above: Melissa Thetgee feeling at home at Coventry High School, a place she has already spent three years, lounges on the floor and relaxes with a book. When someone tells her to curl up with a book she really does.

Above: Matt "I am a man" Weinand smiles for the camera. Oh Matt you will always be known to us as Stud Smiley, a name you both earned and deserved. I mean really what would Matt be without a smile?

Right: Stretch! April Nunes working out her calves, on one of those medieval torture machines in the weight room. Watch out or she will pump you up, And I can promise you that when she's done you'll feel like a new man, whether that is good or bad is up to you to be the judge.

Above: Here's a talented senior for you. How many people do you know can do this with their tongues. Come on I know talent when I see it . . . well that's just my personal opinion!

A Bright Light Ahead

(top left:) This vast array of juniors known to themselves as the "Tribe of 95" are savage when it comes to school spirit. (top right:) Andy Wade who was just one of the injured students that appeared during the year proves he can hobble without his crutches. (bottom left:) Jodie Dunn is taking advantage of some free class time by licking her lips for some yummy in her tummy juice. (bottom right:) Heather Gilheeny, who is known for expressing her own style, appears to be lapsing into her own little world.

Mrs. Judith Baxter, Class Advisor, has the difficult and time consuming tasking of guiding the class through one of the most turbulent years in high school; one that includes the Junior Prom, Class Rings, and the Junior-Senior Christmas Dance.

Carrie Gizienski, Treasurer; Jackie Russell, Secretary; Justin Richard, Vice-President; and Tony Clarke, Student Council Representative round out the slate of class officers elected to guide the Class of 95. They took an active role in organizing the class and its activities. Weekly meetings were held to assist in the planning of the Prom and selection of the rings. Many hours were spent with ring and favor salesmen.

Jacob Matthews was elected Junior Class President. In addition to chairing the weekly class meetings and being involved in all of the class activities, Matthew headed up the class during Spirit Week and led the Class of 94 through a fun-filled year.

The Social Committee, chaired by Wendi Paul, and members Taryn Bjorklund, Jessica D'Abrosca, Susan Inong, Jim Pardee, Heather Pretto, Melissa Sweet, and Emily Warrender, had a busy and productive year. They put together the Christmas Dance, Junior Prom, a class Homecoming Float, and planned strategy for Spirit Week.

Whales in Jello?

What kind of a question is that?

Obviously someone spent a lot of time thinking up that one. The juniors seem to agree- "no". A couple of students gave reasons. One person put "No- their blowholes get clogged". Someone else wrote "only lime" (What about strawberry? Or cherry?) One person with a scathing wit scrawled "I don't know- ask Roseanne". That's stupid. Why go to her when we have Shamu? Someone who obviously cared a lot said "Gee, good question"! Thanks. We think so. I have one question: can a squid live in jello if a whale can?

Bill or Hillary?

Who really rules the White House — Hillary or Bill ... or Socks?

Sorry Bubba, the secret's out! The juniors know that Hillary really rules the White House. You can quit now. She'll fix everything. Go back to jogging and chow down at McDonald's. Hillary's got America in the palm of her hand. Of course, if there's any real disaster she'll call on the most intelligent one of your whole family — Socks! Be sure to protect him from Murphy Brown. You can't let the presidential pet be catnapped! What about Chelsea? She's too busy doing her hair for those wild slumber parties ... Here, Socks! Good kitty.

Things We Do

Why do we do the things we do? Very philosophical!

Hmmm ... If you're puzzled, ask the juniors! One great sage answered "because if we didn't do the things we do, we'd be doing the things we don't do". Say THAT five times fast! Well, we can't argue with it. We do these things to have fun and because we have nothing better to do. Well, besides torturing our parents and annoying our teachers! Many replied they were simply driven, they were compulsive, and did not really know why they did what they did. Another genius simply wrote "beats me!" I think that's agreed with 100%!!!

Life After CHS?

Juniors have all sorts of plans for life after CHS. Moving out of Rhode Island is #1 on the list. That's loyalty for ya! College is #2. Preps! Lots of juniors would love to run away to California or Hawaii with the one they love. Killing Barney was another popular choice, and one person told us that after CHS she would DIT. Hmmmm ... Do Income Taxes? Dig Into Tombs? Eew. Maybe she meant "Dance In Texas" or "Dare Intelligent Teachers" ... The ultimate would be, as one student suggested, to win POWERBALL and sail away on a yacht for the rest of your natural life. Aaaahhhhh ...

Above: Hilary Caldow digs through her locker in search of some long-lost notebook. It's like traveling throughout Africa in search of Dr. Livingston. Find any moldy lunches?

Above: Robert Madonna, looking bewildered. He is truly taken aback by the cruel reality of the Bobbit case. Either that or he is upset over the fact that he did not have a mirror to fix himself before this picture was snapped.

Above: Jessica Suraski is in deep thought during her history class, probably about what she's doing tonight, and by the look on her face it's good.

Right: Carrie Field chomps on her pen to relieve stress during a busy passing time. This may be great to relieve stress, but I bet her dentist would have a fit, not to mention her mother, and elementary school teacher.

Above: Matt Herterick is engrossed with his books one afternoon in the library. At least he's following the "two to a table" rule.

As The World Turns

(top right:) Which one of these three is not like the other? The answer to this question must be Tracy Simmoneau who is wearing quite the contrasting outfit of all black.

(bottom left:) Rich Coelho and Brian Hayes prove that they are manly man with their oh so sexy pose. Don't we all want our men to aspire to these great pinnacles of manliness?

Advisor: Matthew Brissette

How did he do it! The advisor managed to keep those rowdy sophomores in line.

Class Officers: Treasurer Josh Panis, Student Council Rep. Sue Baxter, Secretary Trisha Tremblay, Vice President Kristen Hoffman, Social Committee Chair Melanie Malloy.

The class officers worked diligently to keep the sophomore year running smoothly. Their superior skills, as well as many others, were responsible for putting together such things as the sophomore dance.

President: Mike Kendra

The sophomore class president led his class through the exciting and tumultuous spirit week in the month of March. Mike really had to charge and psych his class up for this event. Mike worked under Mr. Brissette, and had a lot of help from the class officers, and social committee.

Social Committee: Heather McArdle, Erin Jeranian, Amy Lewis, Kristen Nester, Beth Taylor, Melissas Paiva, Kim Darigan, Beth Ritchotte

The social committee helped to organize the big sophomore lock-in and all of its terrific activities, as well as to add to the spirited morale of their class during spirit week. They devised a great strategy for this very important week. They also designed a class home-coming parade float, and many other exciting events during the 1993-1994 school year.

Where Are We?

As I was reading responses on the Yearbook Survey, I got the feeling that not many sophomores know who they are, where they came from (probably another galaxy) or where they are going. Lots of "I don't know"'s came up to questions like "Can whales live in jello?" and "Which is better — silk or flannel boxers?" C'mon people! Get with the program! Everyone knows that whales can live in jello, but not jigglers. Silk and flannel have nothing on velvet boxers! I'm sure that as juniors, these answers will be obvious. Study hard over the summer or make the whale question a new science experiment! Future sophomores will thank you!

Instant Love?

Do you believe in love at first sight?

The tenth grade is obviously romantic. Most sophomores say "YES!!!" Gee, you can't tell from the relationships found at CHS! It takes YEARS for some couples to get together, and seconds to break apart! How many love crises have there been this week? 100? 200?

Or was that just on Monday? I can't remember. Those students that say "no" believe in infatuation at first sight, but not love. After all, is drooling over your new lab partner love? Maybe for a basset hound. In the meantime, Soap CHS rolls on! Next week's episode: the fastest relationship in history!

Destruction . . .

Destruction: Sophomores may be surrounded by it. Start with those weird morning announcements, the ones with the high-pitched sounds . . . could they really be subliminal messages used to warp our minds? And what's with the AP's and their walkie-talkies? Possibly they are an alien life form out to overtake CHS! There's the cafeteria food, the perfect trap for teens (something to fill their stomachs). But what's really in it? It sure looks unnatural. Could education be a slow process to overtake the earth? Maybe school should be eliminated as a safety hazard. We have to escape! Oh no! Sophomores still have two more years to go!

A Quest?

What is your quest? Sophomores at CHS seem to have many different ones. Some only wish to get out of this school (popular choice!). Others want to earn a lot of money or get married. Hey, why not have both? Lots of us would just try to achieve happiness. That's easy. Just invent a way to implode algebra homework. Then there's those sophomores who want to boldly go where no one has ever gone before and find Deep Space Nine! Kidnaping the starship Enterprise would be a grand adventure, too. Personally, my quest is to be able to open the yearbook office door. I'll never give up! Does anyone know where I can find a battering ram?

Back in Time ...

During what period of history would you like to live?

Most sophomores like the 1960's and 1970's. Groovy, man! Others want to live in the time of Lincoln and the Civil war. Crazy violence cravers! One person said that they wanted to live in their future life. Now THAT's planning ahead. Of course, there's also the romantics that want to go back to medieval times to slay dragons and save fair maidens ... How noble! If only we could create a time machine like in the Back to the Future movies. Then we could go wherever we wanted ... Except the Reagan years (who would want live then?!). Great Scott!

(top left:) During this years Homecoming, the sophomores sport their spiffy slogan. The slogan, "And on the 7TH day God created the Class of 1996" was ... interesting Christina Hallem, like most average students, focuses on gossiping. Why would anyone want to listen to a teacher when there are so many more things to do?

A Different World

(bottom left:) Dan LaCroiux has his hands full as he navigates his way down the staircase. Don't lose your grip, we would not want you to fall and hurt yourself.

(bottom right:) Jeremy Colozza daydreams in the lunchroom about what he can do with the cafeteria food. Any ideas? Maybe he is thinking about starting a food fight. You would not want to clean up that mess, right?

Freshman

Advisor: Patricia Kelly

The advisor had her hands full, since this was the class's first year at CHS.

Class Officers: Secretary Amy Fregeolle, Vice President Michaela Thompson, Student Council Rep. Areli Calzada, Treasurer Jessica Hoxsie

Though it was the blind leading the blind, the class officers did a good job at informing the rest of the class during such times as the spirit week. The officers had a big job in front of them since they were in their first year of the big time at CHS.

President: Ernie Dimicco

As the freshmen class president, Ernie had an extremely large job which faced him. The memories of the class of '97's freshmen year were all made possible by the leadership of this brave young man. Already as we can see Ernie seems to be following in the large footsteps of his father.

Social Committee: Jenny DiCarlo, Jennifer Berk, Autumn Fiske, Daniel Rainha, Melissa Antonaccio, Heather Shibley (committee chair)

The social committee along with the officers and president put together the home-coming float, a spirit week stragedy, a skit for the varsity revue, and a plethora of other exciting events and memories. A big job for a group of kids in their first year of high school at CHS.

Jiggling Whales?

Can Whales live in Jello? Most of the freshmen at CHS said "no". C'mon frosh! Everyone knows that the answer is YES!!! Sheesh. If Bill Cosby can control all of those kids with jigglers, Jello can certainly support a whale. Just ask Shamu. You have to pay attention in biology. All whales and squid love Jello, especially the orange kind. One creative student was positive that whales can live in marshmallow fluff. That would make a WHOLE LOT of sandwiches. Here's a brain buster: can zebras live in peanut butter? If they can, that would make one great picnic!
