Living on the Edge

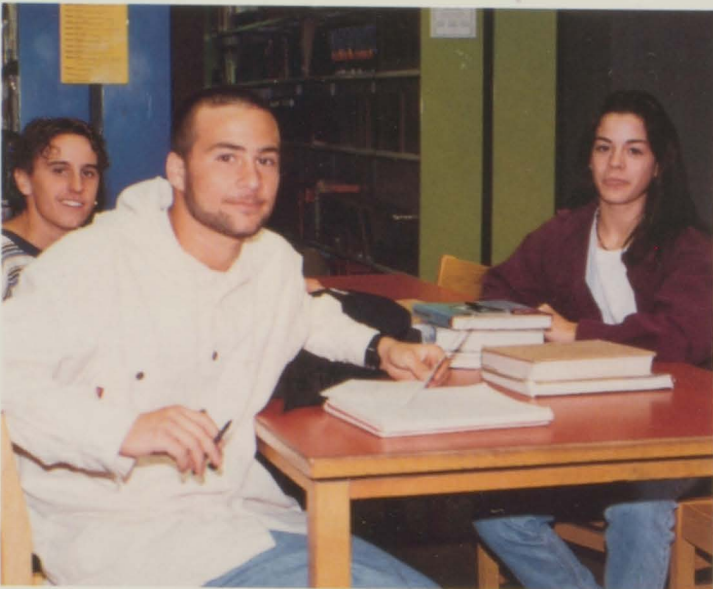

On the Edge of a New Beginning

The 1994-95 school year has been a year of great transition. Students could sense that from the very first time they walked through the doors. With the Freshman class came a new record of over 1700 students roaming the halls. Restructuring of Coventry's school system began early in the first quarter. Caught in the middle of this tide of change, many of the new teachers that came to CHS this year may yet again find themselves relocated. These changes may have been a breath of fresh air. For the first time, Upperclassmen could tell freshmen that there actually is a pool on the third floor. With new sense of individualism, new styles, and new ideas, CHS has approached a new level of student activism. This was reflected in student-run activities such as the Homecoming parade, which was the biggest and best ever! Changes for the good? Changes for the better? We can only take the days one at a time.

Living Today

Teenagers love to live for today. They want to make the most of their time at high school by hanging around with friends, participating in sports teams and clubs, and rallying school spirit. They take life to its fullest and the world is ready to let them. Living today is better than living at any other time. State of the art technology, a thirst for fun, and rising independence make high school an unbelievable time. No longer do you have to be "part of the group." Everyone does their own thing — be it sitting in the hallway with friends or roaming the roof. Whatever you like, the emphasis today is on fun! Life would be pretty dull if people never got out to enjoy it. In fact, fun is what keeps teenagers going through all the problems that rise up in their lives. We must live for today's opportunities because tomorrow our choices will be different and we'll have a whole new day of opportunities ahead.

The Tribe of '95 is a group of extremely creative and freaky individuals. Now seniors, the Tribe has faced the perils of twelve years of school: the good, the bad, and the boring. Over the past four years, they've achieved a strong sense of unity. From the Freshman Dance to the Senior Ball, from freshman orientation to graduation, they've experienced it all together. Being a senior involves many responsibilities: college applications, SAT scores, after-school jobs, and community service, to name a few. It's enough to push anyone over the edge! Although these activities only add to the confusion of high school life, the Tribe has become stronger because of them. It was a long uphill battle full of obstacles but they believed in themselves and succeeded. Their experiences as a class have helped to shape them into the talented people they are today — the graduating class of 1995 is ready to conquer the world!

Hold on . . .

The class of 1995 had their memorable junior prom on April 8, 1994 at the elegant Rhodes on the Pawtuxet. It was a beautiful night, with the sun setting over the river as everyone arrived. We were all ushered into the gorgeous ballroom to our tables. We then formed the long line to have the night captured on film. From there we all lined up once again to meet our many administrators and the fantastic people who organized the entire night. A delicious dinner of boneless stuffed chicken and vegetables was next. Following dinner we moved onto the dance floor as the DJ began playing those class favorites: "YMCA," "The Rock Lobster," and "The Electric Slide." The night went by in that timeless nature unique to proms and dances. At the end of the night, we slowly danced to the final song, "Lady in Red," and then moved off into the foggy night, each and every one of us "Holding on to the Night."

Class History

In September of 1991, Coventry High Opened its doors to its biggest class of freshmen yet - the Class of 1995. Although we were the biggest (we numbered over 400), we felt like the smallest as we battled our way through the crowded halls in search of some obscure classroom. This was the year the new wing opened. Remember Mr. DiPrete's welcoming speech to us on our first day? We wouldn't stop talking, and were dismissed back to class in disgrace. We elected Jackie Russell as class president to guide us through our initiation year. Jackie did a great job planning our year, which included the Freshmen Semi-Formal, Set the Night to Music. The year drew to a close with an electrical fire in the auditorium, and most of the school left before we were officially dismissed. We were having the time of our lives.

Our Sophomore year brought an end to spare time as we started Honors Classes. Our English teachers showed no mercy and Mr. Piascik taught us history as no one ever had before. The schedule was switched to a seven period day, and we hated it with a passion as the days dragged on. We elected Amy Mroz as our president. With the help of the class officers, the social committte, and Mr. Brisette, Amy created a new CHS tradition -the sophomore class Lock-In Dance. This dance was a huge success. As the year went by, our knowledge of word analogies and seemingly pointless math problems was tested as we attempted the PSAT. We ended the year by bidding a fond farewell to our beloved principal, Mr. DiPrete. Realization had set in - we were halfway through high school.

Junior year had arrived, and it was the year we had all been eagerly awaiting. It was a year of firsts for us. We welcomed Mr. Deasy as our new principal. We slept through Drivers Ed. and received our licenses, which were our tickets to freedom! The Voc-Tech was available to eager juniors, and our classes at CHS increased in difficulty. Mr. and Mrs. Pike joined forces and made us write until our fingers bled, and we faced the dreaded term papers in English and History. We elected Jacob Mathews as class president, and he and the other officers planned our first two formals - the Junior/Senior Christmas Dance and the Junior Prom. The Christmas Dance was called Visions of Sugarplums and was held at the 1025 Club. Here we were subjected to the infamous rubber chicken, which deflated upon being cut open. We danced and partied with the Seniors on the tiny dance floor, and generally had a fantastic time. We celebrated with the wrestling team, who won another State Championship, and with the Volleyball team, who did the same. The Junior Prom was held on April 8, 1994 at the beautiful Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet. The food was delicious and the music was a reflection of our class as we danced to The Rock Lobster and Y.M.C.A. we crowned Kim Birong as our Queen, and we then proceeded on to the end of the year events. We struggled through the SAT, and then we attended Class Day, where we said good-bye to the senior class. We followed Tony Clark's lead and turned our class rings. The moment had arrived. We were Seniors.

We entered CHS on September 2, 1994 as the ruling class. Alex Thomas was elected our final class president. Homecoming '94 took place on October 1st, where our football team was defeated in the closing minutes of the fourth quarter by East Providence. Still, school spirit was high as the floats paraded around the track. We crowned Mike Gionti and Daryl Fish our Co-Kings, a first in school history. From there we moved on to the always fun college applications and scholarships. We nearly drowned in SAT scores, transcripts, and financial aid forms, but we survived long enough to attend the Junior/Senior Christmas Dance which was held on Wednesday, December 21, at the West Valley Inn. The theme was Winter Wonderland, and we had a memorable night. Senior year continued to race by us, and our next big event was the Senior Ball, which was held at the Newport Marriot. This event took place on May 12, and we were saddened to realize our days at CHS were numbered. The Senior Supper was Tuesday, May 30, and we received our caps and gowns, graduation tickets, and yearbooks. The next few days were a blur as every inch of available space in our yearbooks were covered with goodbye messages. On Class Day, June 7, 1995, we turned the school over to the Juniors- the next generation of Seniors. It was a day of tears and farewells. Graduation was held on June 10, 1995 at the Warwick Musical Theater. We walked across the stage, one by one, to receive our diplomas, and it was like we were crossing into a new life. We were venturing out into the world, and as the song says, We go together. And we do. The Class of 1995 will always remain together in the memories of all its members.

Michelle Clark emerges from the mists carrying - what else but a Dunkin Donuts Coffe? Everyone needs a caffeine boost once in a while!

We, the Class of 1995, do hereby declare this prophecy to be our legacy and to remain sealed until our 10th Class Reunion in the year 2005 A.D.

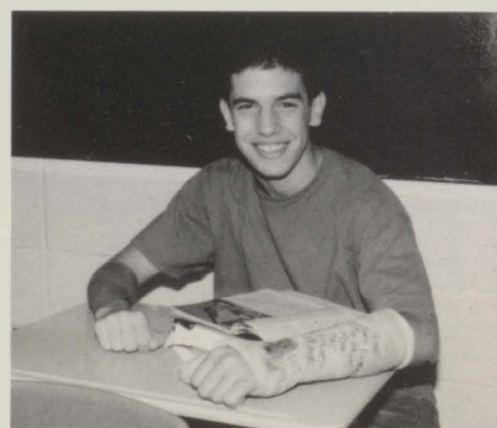

The Junior year is like flying through a fog in a daze. Juniors must endure the famous SAT's and the legendary Pikes. This year is not only a step up from being a sophomore, but it is like leaping across the country. However this is made easier by obtaining a driver's license and buying the broken down car from the parents or one from a dealer. Along with the worries of a car, class rank, SAT scores, their career choice, and college choice they must worry about how they will finance their class rings. However the junior year isn't all about migraine headaches and ulcers. The junior year is full of extra-curricular activities, the best of all being the Prom. Junior year is a challenge but also a great time. At the end, every junior turns their ring at Class Day and say good bye to friends and hello to reigning the school.

Which do you prefer: Day or Night?

Day and night couldn't be more opposite. Juniors were pretty much divided over this debate. Some of the reasons for liking day better were: "more people abound, it seems optimistic in the sense of light (okay Einstein, you made your point), the boggie man isn't out yet" and "I can see." The people who preferred night were a little more morbid. One said: "I like the dark." There were some upbeat reason for liking the dark. "Because that's when you party." There's always one student who doesn't understand the question. "Yes' I do prefer day or night because night and day just don't sound right. What is the world in for?

Do you dream in Color or Black & White?

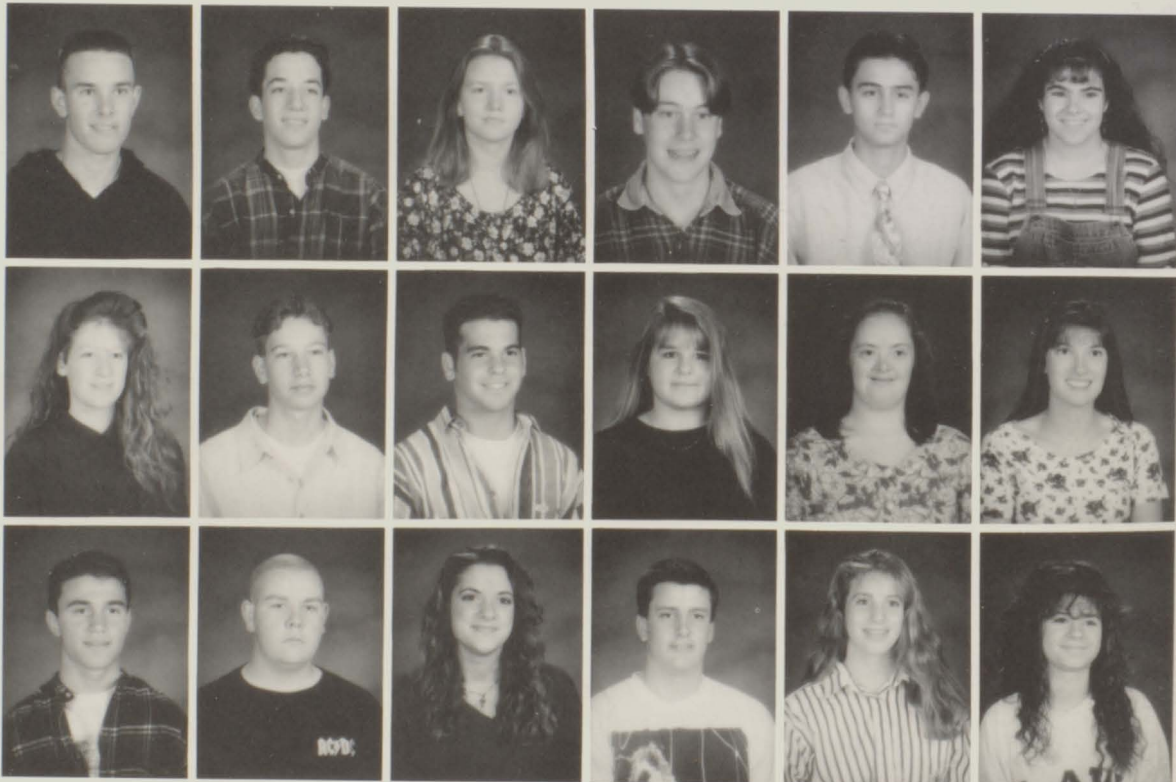

Every one dreams, usually in history classes, but why do they dream? An overwhelming majority of juniors dream in color. Dreaming in black and white is even more dull than not dreaming at all. It's like watching reruns of the Honeymooners. What is the good of dreaming about hot chicks and cute hunks with blond hair and blue eyes, if you can't see the color! One creative junior referred to one of those "back in the good old days" stories told by his grandfather. They dreamed in black and white then because color hadn't been invented. Some people don't know what color they dream in. They need to clear up the static blocking their dreams. Dreams help people live better lives.

What is the greatest invention Since Sliced Bread?

According to our survey, sliced bread was the revolution of its time. It began the landslide toward TV dinners and other prepared foods. It would take too long for the average consumer to slice his own bread. So what is the greatest thing since sliced bread? The most popular junior response we cannot quote here. Others with more creative minds replied "the toaster, a butter knife, OK soda, computers, inter-active games, cable television, the Fox Network, MTV and CD's." One junior, who apparently is still living the Dark Ages, responded: "I didn't know that there was such a thing as sliced bread." We hope this junior realizes that it is the 1990's, not the 1890's.

How would you describe CHS In One Word?

Juniors have been at Coventry High School long enough to have developed an idea of what they think of their school. So, when asked to describe the school in one word, they came up with some interesting responses. One extremely perceptive individual respond that CHS is "crowded." I most definitely agree. Passing time is like rush hour traffic on the George Washington Bridge on a Friday afternoon. The answer "green" puzzled me. Could this person be referring to the walls of some classrooms. Maybe you know what this means? Other responses included: "educational, long, confusing, hot, cold, intricate, happy, friendly, and inscrutable."

Class of '96

To meet him was to like him, but to know him was to love him.

Douglas A. Koszela

*Sing with me now,
Sing for the year,
Sing for the laughter,
Sing for the tear,
Sing with me now,
If it's just for today,
Cause maybe tomorrow
The good Lord will take you away. Dream on!*

Hectic Lives

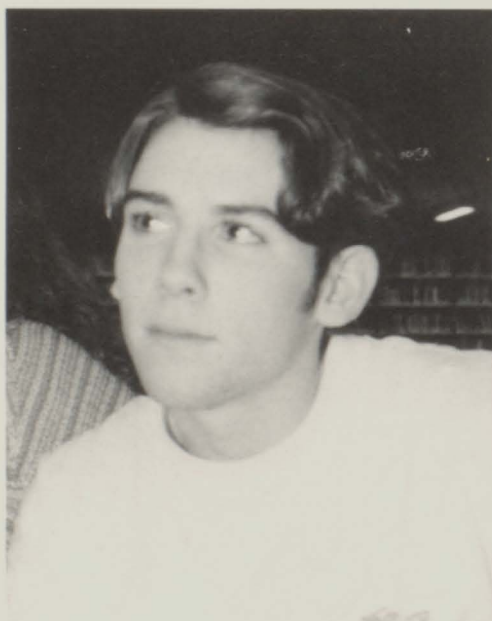

Above: Cute, huh? (No, it's not a tarantula. It's the Junior class Halloween spider-pumpkin.) Below: You've entered a dimension between sight and sound; you've entered the mind of Brian Neary.

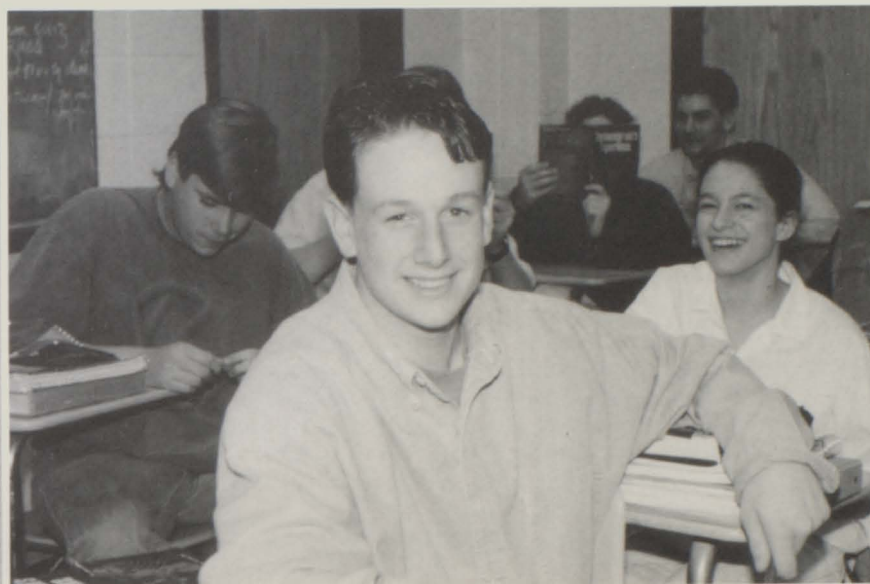

Above: Pam Cuppolla is caught smiling, thinking "Hallelujah! Mr. Pike turned off the overhead! Let us all rejoice!" Below: Michelle Macomb says, "Did I tape my fingers together?" Karen Stonis answers, "Yes, you did!"

Strong enough to lift a ton of books, more sleep-deprived than a farmer during harvest, capable of sending any stress test up in smoke; who is this person? Any junior can raise their hand to this one. As frosh we heard that junior year is the hardest, but when the time comes to juggle work, school, family, friends, and after-school activities, it's even worse than we first thought. We can't really pick and choose very much, so we're left with EVERYTHING! Just eliminate sleeping, though our efficiency level drops somewhat — we'll get it all done. But keep smiling! Only one more year, and then we own the school!

Chilling Out

Above: Tricia Hanratty smiles prettily for our roving photographer. Below: "I think I can, I think I can, I think I can, can I?"

Above: This sure is a nice shot of Adam Hendricks, but don't pay any attention to that student behind the book (it could give teachers the impression that we enjoy work!) Below: Is Marge Winemiller just way too happy to be in school, or what?

Ask a sophomore what the best part of the year was, and you'd probably hear "Not being a freshman, duh!" Sophomore year is the year to have fun. The anxiety of being freshmen has passed and you are temporarily spared the horrors of Junior year — SAT's, colleges, careers, etc. It's the only year where your major class social event involves spending the night at school instead of going to a fancy dinner dance. You've gained new respect from the upperclassmen and have a feeling of increased power. No longer are you the target of ridicule. You're now the ones taking aim. (See, we told you you'd get payback time!) Even your teachers try to make you laugh and enjoy the year. After all you are too young for ulcers. We'll save those for the Juniors. Just lean back and take it easy before the going gets rough. Sorry guys, you have two more years to go, and as we know, they fly by. Hold on to your seats! I.C.W. and El Capitan

Leaders '97

President Ernest DiMicco led the class of '97 for the second time.

Class Officers: Vice-President Amey Fregeolle, Treasurer Autumn Fiske, Secretary Joanne Montalbano, Student Council Representative Lisa Brennan.

Mr. Brisette continued to do an excellent job as sophomore class advisor this year.

Social Committee: Kathy Arcoraci, Jennifer Berk, Areli Calzada, Jeff Klein, Michaela Thompson, Kelly Pretto, and Heather Shibley.

How would you describe CHS

In One Word?

The results are in and the sophomores surveyed described CHS with the following adjectives: "Freaky, weird, boring, long, crowded, large, interesting, friendly, demanding, red and white, and survival of the fittest." Apparently the writers of the last two comments did not read the directions to limit their response to a single word. It is obvious that the sophomores have a wide and diverse view of their school. Some of the comments were quite amusing. Others, such as crowded and large were on target. School spirit is evident with the red and white comment. Exactly what "survival of the fittest" means, we do not know. Perhaps some Darwinian scholar can tell us.

How many people could you Fit Into a Volkswagon?

The most popular answers were 8 and 9, although more ambitious folks manage to fit more in a jam. Some disappointing sophomores can only fit six, however — but perhaps they refer to the new Volkswagen motorcycle. Congratulations to the talented sophomore who crowds a whopping 23 into the car! Of course, the truth was found in the answer, “a googol, but they’d have to be real skinny and hold their breaths”. To the creative soul who responded, “It doesn’t matter, fish don’t like ice cream!”, please, whoever you are, join the yearbook staff! You’ll fit in perfectly! And finally, a special thanks to those who provided diagrams. They were quite helpful in discovering your logic.

Have you ever wondered about what Marshmallow is Made of?

Did you ever wonder what's in that little white lump that millions of tradition-conscious Americans toast over fires every summer? Most people don't want to know the truth, but it's always fun to take a guess. One of the more original ingredients I came across was the Stay Puff Marshmallow Man. I have one question to ask of the person who said they're made of snow: How do you toast them? Most believe they're made of exotic combinations of sugar, cotton, marsh, fluff, and squash. My personal favorite was the notion that marshmallows are made of clouds. Picture it — lying on your back in a grassy meadow, looking up at the blue sky dotted with fluffy marshmallows . . .

Now the ultimate question, is there Life after Death?

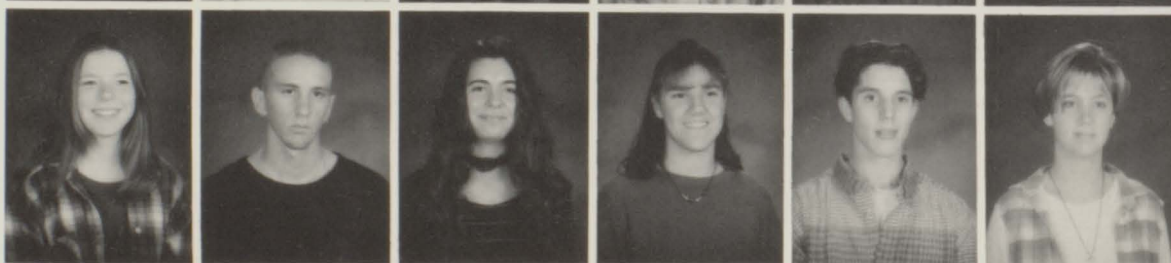

Life after death? This question has puzzled philosophers for ages. Coventry High sophomores certainly seem sure of their answers, though opinion was pretty evenly split. One clever person answered, "But of corpse there is!" Come on, folks! There must be life after death! How else do you explain those clunking noises that come out of the heaters in the classrooms? It must be the ghosts of students who died after flunking their chemistry finals and have come back for revenge. (Either that or it is an annoying sophomore who complained one too many times and was stuffed in there by her associates.) Well, the mystery shall have to remain a mystery for now!

Class of '97

Soph Smiles

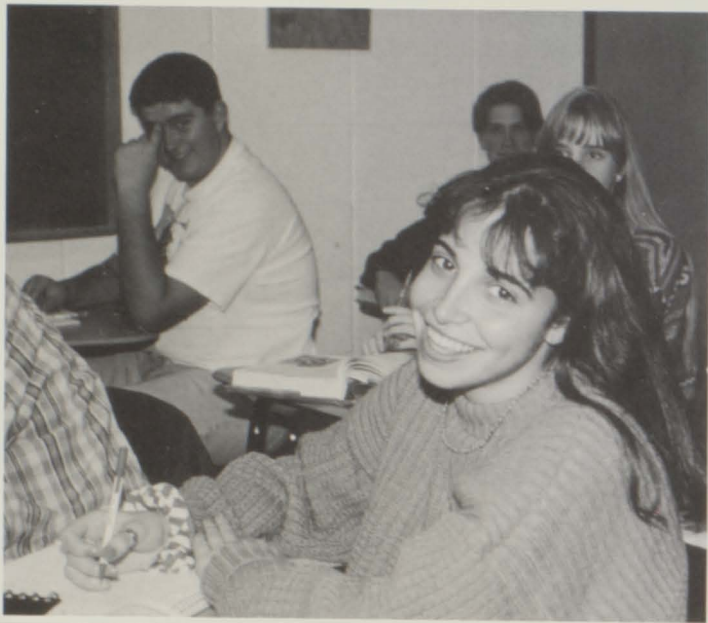

Above: Michael Lindstrom says, "I don't need to study. I know this stuff like the back of my hand." Below: Lisa Barry thinks, "Do I have to smile for this picture."

Above: Daniel St. Amand hopes to get an A on her next tough history test.

There comes a time in everyone's life when the dreaded year comes ... being a freshman. There's no avoiding it, it's a curse, get over it. Think back, it wasn't that long ago when we all first entered the hallowed halls of CHS. Memories of trying to find classes, open lockers, and attempt to navigate passages through the corridor. After a short time it all became second nature and the freshman began to stumble through their first year. The distinction of having teachers such as

Mr. Morin, Ms. Balentine, and Mr. Thompson was all part of the package. Not to forget the epitome of the year, the Freshman Formal. That's right sportsfans, you get to dress up really nice and dance in the aromatic, luxurious, one and only school cafeteria. The year isn't complete until you become the scapegoat of upperclassmen, it's tradition (You'll get your turn next year!). Think you have it bad? Just wait ... I.C.W. and El Capitan

On the Edge of

President Nico Clift was elected to lead the freshmen through the tumultuous first year of high school.

Class Officers: Lisa Ferretti, Vice-President; Sarah Groleau, Treasurer; Carrie Burton, Secretary; Heather Curley, Student Council Rep.

Mrs. Kelly, Class advisor, had the difficult job of molding the freshmen into the life of high school students.

Social Committee: Karen Saenko, Michala Safford, Lauren Rupp, and Alaina Chabot

What is the greatest invention Since Sliced Bread?

Sliced bread was revolutionary. But, pray tell, what new ideas have changed the world just as much as this wonder? The answers to this question varied greatly. To just name a few: TV's, women, chocolate, pizza, paper shredders (what?!), and Spree candy. Some pun-happy people responded with: the butter knife, sandwiches, toaster ovens, and sliced cheese. A few frosh with inflated egos claimed that they were the greatest thing since sliced bread (they must have meant moldy bread). A final note to the demented freshmen who said "nuclear missiles, toxic waste, or nuclear wastes": you'd think twice if any of those items landed in Coventry and your body began to glow.

How did we get the nickname

The Oakers?

Most schools have mascots that are mobile. Upperclassmen have too many opinions about what an Oaker is so we thought we'd ask the frosh. The majority believe it is an elephant. Our argument against that is, why aren't we the Elephants? A few believe an Oaker is a tree. There's merit in that. Oak trees are strong and dominating. But, one gets a little tired of hearing from rival schools, "Your mascot is a TREE?!" A few individuals obviously don't know how to take a multiple choice test. They wrote in their own responses. Some were pretty good: "It's a CHS student" and "It's a member of this nutty community called CHS". Wouldn't it be simpler to just change it to "Oakefant?"
