The 95-96 school year proved to be one of change and adjustment. The fifteen minute time change forced students to rise and shine much earlier to catch the bus. Once on the bus, high school students had to deal with the middle school students. Both groups of kids rode the same bus to and from school. This bus situation occurred due to budget cuts. Along with cuts in buses, there were cuts in after school activities. Foreign language, Interact, and Model Legislature were among these clubs. Although there were many cuts, one of the passing times was increased by one minute. Passing times are usually four minutes long, but this year between third and fourth period there was a whopping five minutes. With the wet homecoming parade as the kickoff, CHS students were filled with school spirit throughout the year. That one extra minute of passing time must have caused some extra thinking about becoming involved. Through all of the school's events Oaker spirit remained high. At the conclusion of this year, it was obvious that Oakers came together from many pieces to form one.

By Piece

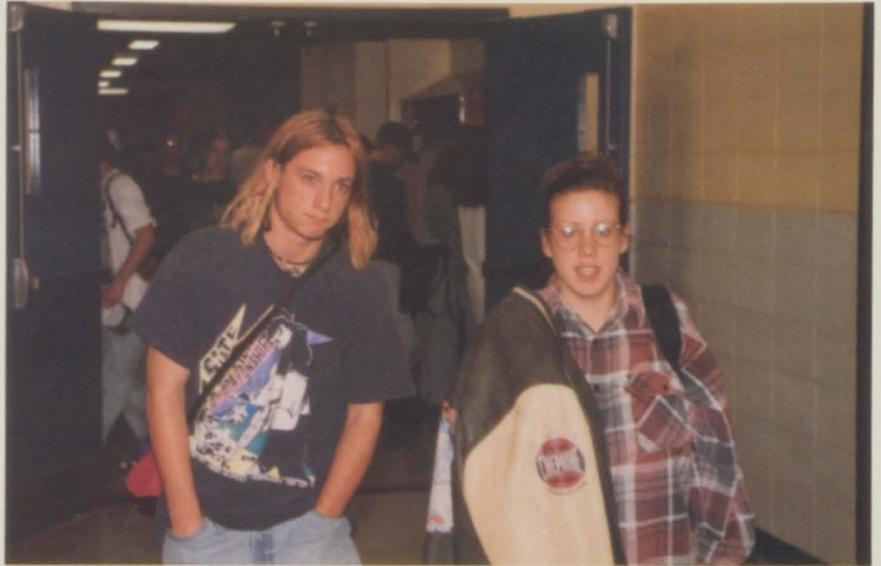

1700+ Pieces

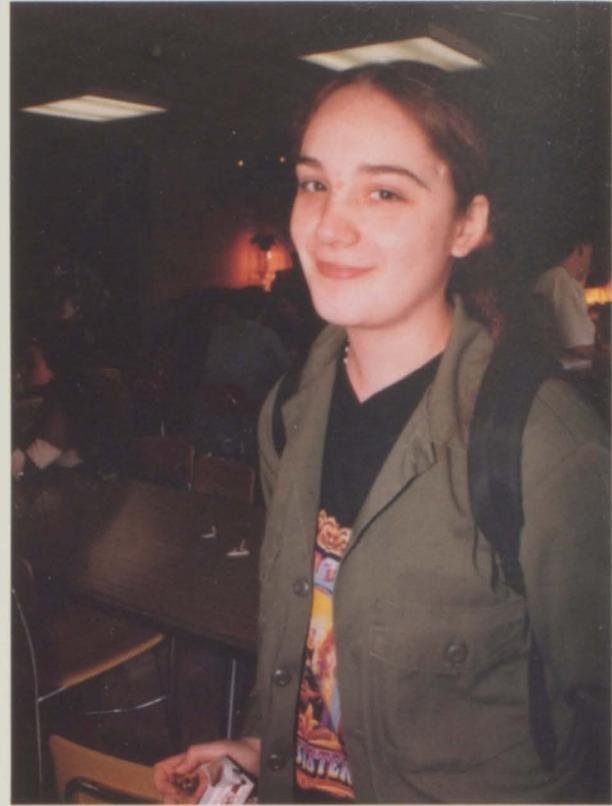

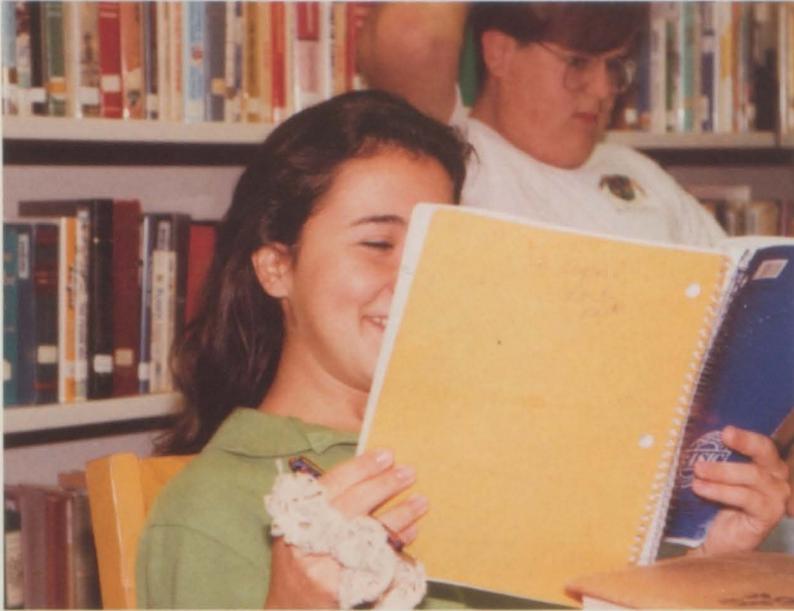

Included

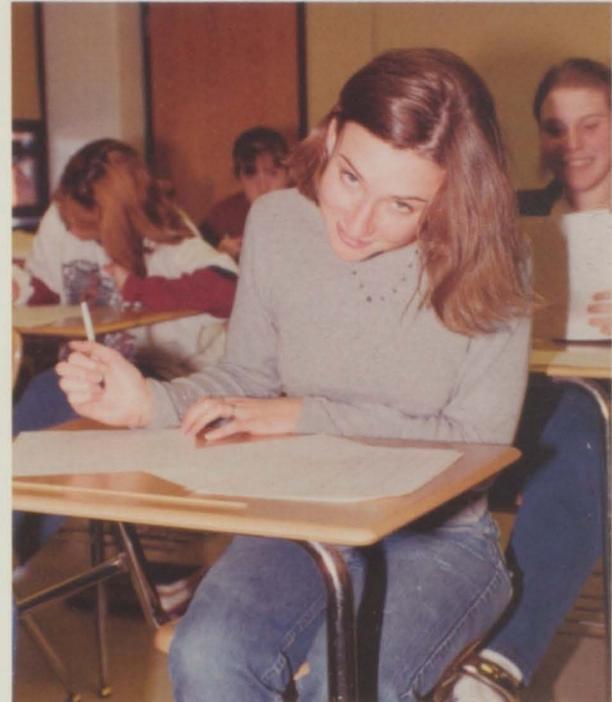

Coventry High was a complicated puzzle to construct; however, with over 1700 students, each piece naturally fell into place. The many different pieces such as DECA, Student Council, WCVY, sports, class officers, ROTC, Academic Decathlon, as well as the many other individual sections contributed to the overall picture known as Coventry High School. Each piece of CHS accomplished individual tasks. Student Council paved the road to a few reasonable school rules. They also gave permission to the Music Dept. to have fundraisers, that contributed to the many performances put on for the student body. One such performance, created especially for the holiday season, added to the spirit that DECA first started in 1987. The Adopt-A-Family program, lead by DECA members, involved many of the clubs and the community in giving gifts to children at Christmas. WCVY helped add to the School's uniqueness by being one of the few high school stations in the Nation. 'CVY strived to provide the students with the music they wanted to hear. ROTC, strived to continue its efforts in community service and school security. The Unit's Drill Team remained one of the best in the Northeast, and competed strongly on the national level. Oaker sports were spirited throughout their respective seasons, always giving their best and then some. To keep the athletes hopeful, the cheerleading squads always kept the team's spirits high with their gymnastic expertise. Special thanks in keeping the puzzle of CHS together goes to the Class Officer's. Without their help, many of the student dances and other special activities would not have taken place. With so many pieces and so many sections, it is amazing that they all fit together. Yet it is this complexity that makes Coventry High School a one and only.

James Soler wonders how he can apply the today's psychology lesson to his community service project.

Mrs. Chipman helps her class to evaluate their emotional levels and how this will be helpful as they work on their community service projects.

Mike Pierson contemplates how he will apply what he has learned in the classroom to his volunteer site.

Danielle Dobson listens intently to the principles being discussed, realizing she will be applying them at her work site.

Jen Meriano proves that laughter is the best medicine as the class discussion moves to a lighter side.

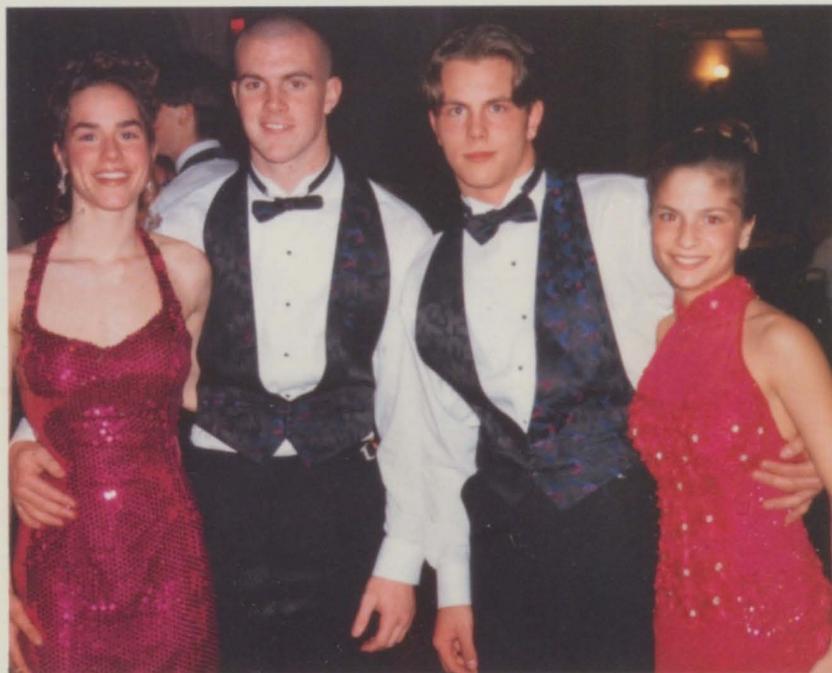

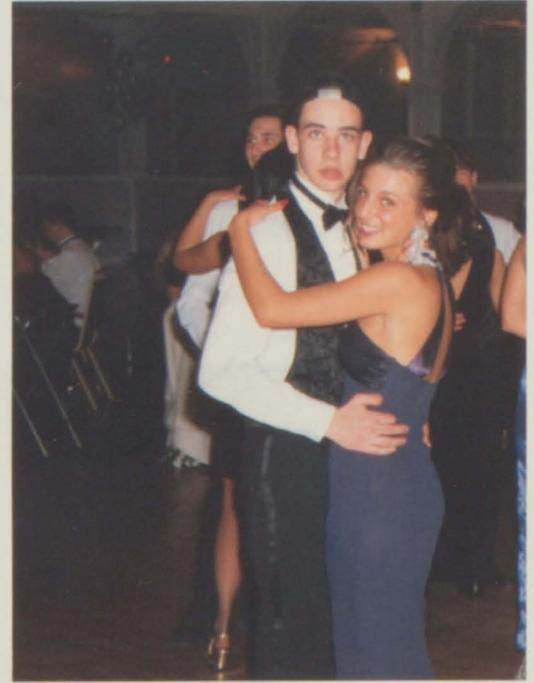

We've

Our excitement began to bubble out as we stepped into the eloquently decorated Rhodes on the Pawtuxet. After spending months of careful preparation and making important decisions such as, what to wear and who to go with, our night had finally arrived. The junior prom was a night filled with happiness, laughter, and special memories. Shortly after the photographer took the couple photos that were sure to be worth a thousand words, we glided through the receiving line greeting our class officers and chaperones. We sat down to an enjoyable meal consisting of salad, chicken, and a dessert that melted too quickly. Dancing got underway as the DJ played favorites like YMCA, the Electric Slide, and Sunshine Day from the Brady Bunch. There was a break in the action as Melanie Malloy was crowned prom queen. The night seemed to slip by faster than we thought and before we knew where the time had gone we pulled our dates close ending the prom with our theme song "We've got tonight." April 8, 1995 will be a fond memory in all of our hearts. -Pam Coppola

Got Tonight

Kristen Nester, former class president, and her date Ryan Tainsh are anxiously awaiting the splendid chicken dinner that is about to be served.

In matching outfits, Chris Voelker and Brian Sweet, with their dates Kim Powell and Michelle Macomb respectively, walk onto the dance floor.

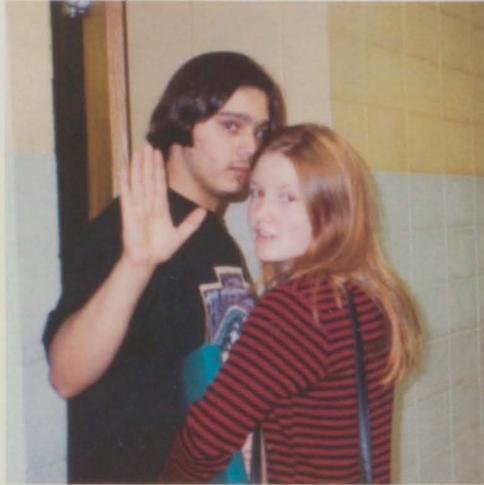

A special moment was shared between Lee Nunn and Tara Either as they danced to one of the many romantic songs played.

Sue Baxter and Brian Stevens reflect upon how this night will be an everlasting memory for them both.

Julia Crowley looks confident after finishing her quiz.

Joe Magnanti and Missy Feeney try to capture a private moment during passing time.

Class president, Gina Calderone, sets the example on how to save time doing English homework. "Hey, Gina, how's Cliff doing?"

History of the Class of '96

Our high school career began on September of 1992 when over four hundred of us entered CHS with hesitation. The transition from Middle School to High School was difficult at first, but became easier as time passed. Never before had we experienced the bell system of switching classes. Never before had we experienced such independence. Melissa Paiva, who we elected President early on, helped to make lasting memories for all of us. She played a major role in planning our Freshmen Semi-Formal, Bed of Roses. 1992 also marked the first ever State Championship for the wrestling team. It was hard to believe that one fourth of our career at CHS had ended. What would come next?

Becoming Sophomores (or wise fools) was relieving because we were no longer spoken to as "the freshmen". Taco Bell, which had been built in only thirty days during the summer, became an after-school hangout for many. We felt less pressured with school work each night due to the change of a seven period day to a six period day. Due to the efforts of our advisor Mr. Brissette, and our President Mike Kendra, we were able to have the second annual Sophomore Lock-In dance. The dance was held on May 5th with overwhelming activities such as human bowling and velcro jumping. Toward the end of the year we attempted the PSAT to find out how well we would do on the SAT the following year. We were on a roll. Nothing could stop the class of '96 now

With half of high school in the history books, we were ready to make our marks as Juniors. This would be one of the most important years for making the grade. We elected Kristen Nester as President without a doubt that she would make the '94-'95 school year eventful. After complicated decisions of what style, what color, and what symbols to have, our class rings were ordered. With the rings shining brightly, we attended our first Christmas Dance, Winter Wonderland. It was fun to celebrate with members of our class as well as friends from the Senior class. We out-spirited the entire school when we won Spirit Week in March. Our enthusiastic attitudes ran over into April when we attended the Junior Prom, We've Got Tonight held at the extravagant Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet. Our theme song was played twice that night, once directly after Melanie Malloy was crowned Queen. We had made it through another year, but we had to make a last effort on the SAT. Class Day brought the usual sadness and happiness. We gave a fond farewell to the Seniors, turned our class rings at the command of Kristen Nester, and held our heads high. We were officially Seniors.

Our Senior year proved to be the most challenging. At the very beginning there were college applications and scholarship applications to worry about, as well as the long and obnoxious financial aid forms. The budget catastrophe managed to eliminate many of our after-school activities. The administration underwent so many changes that it is a wonder the school is still together. Mr. Magerian, the vice-principal, replaced Mr. Deasy as Principal when he accepted the position as acting Assistant Superintendent. Mr. Tebrow then became a Vice Principal. Our advisor Mrs. Collins resigned leaving no hope for us and our President Gina Calderone, but Mr. Hobin lifted our hopes when he became our new advisor. In January we attended the Winter Ball, more commonly known as the Christmas Dance, with the theme Let It Snow. We had thought the changes in administration were finished, but late in January Ms. Boule packed her bags for Mount Hope High to serve as Principal. Mr. O'Donnell became the new V.P. Our last year was winding down. The wrestling team made us proud once again when they won their 15th consecutive state title. The Senior Ball was held on May 17th at the beautiful Westin in Providence. We were saddened by the reality that soon we would no longer rule the school. At the Senior Supper, we received our caps and gowns, along with our graduation tickets, and we picked up our yearbooks. The countdown reached the single digits. Class Day occurred on Wednesday June 5th. Good-bye CHS and Hello World. After the Friday practice, we were ready to walk across the stage on June 8th 1996. We had been waiting for this day the entire year. One by one we walked across the stage at the Warwick Musical Theatre changing from High School Seniors to High School Graduates. Was it possible? Together we made it through the thick and thin of our four years at CHS. Even though we are all heading in different directions and becoming a part of bigger things, we will always be a part of the Class of 1996 at Coventry High School.

Q How do you put your puzzles together?

A Peter Valois said: "I burn puzzles for heat."

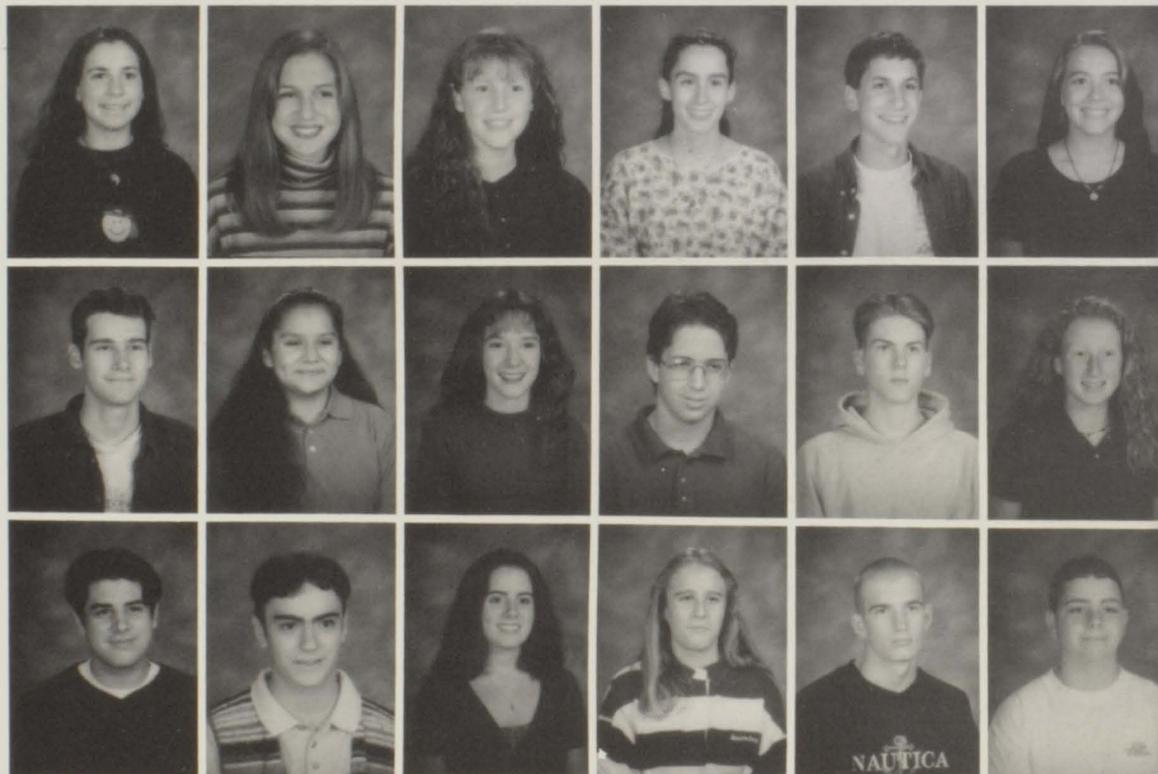

The overwhelming majority of Juniors who put puzzles together said that they match the edges first--talk about following the crowd! One Junior said that he puts all the fitting pieces together first. What is one supposed to do, put all the non-fitting pieces together? One Junior without a life tries each and every piece in each and every spot!

Q Do you prefer BK, Taco Bell, Wendy's, or McDonald's?

A Jen DiCarlo said: "Wendy's, they have square burgers."

Wendy's was the overall most popular choice of fast food institutions in Rhode Island. McDonald's was a close second followed by Burger King then Taco Bell. Two Juniors did not understand the meaning of the multiple-choice question and answered, "Newport Creamery" and "TGI Fridays."

We have a Junior class full of budding Gilligans! Skipper came in second. Apparently nobody wants wealth and power because no one wanted to be the Howells. - The Bionic Arm

Mrs. Pike's Honors 11

When over 20 Juniors signed up for Honors English, they had all heard the stories of Mrs. Pike's famous teaching. Some shrugged them off; others were scared; a few even ignored them. All were subsequently shocked into reality by the first class when Mrs. Pike administered a one-hundred question vocabulary test. "What have we gotten ourselves into?" they asked. What they got themselves into was a difficult but rewarding year. A typical day in Mrs. Pike's class starts out with a reading quiz. Very seldom does a day go by without one. Often they are compounded with a vocabulary quiz immediately after. Without missing a beat Mrs. Pike dives right into giving notes on whatever classic piece of American literature was the previous evening's entertainment for those lucky students. They are careful not to blink or they might miss an important sentence. Once Mrs. Pike's bionic arm starts, it never stops. She continues to unravel baffling themes and character traits. Arrows criss-cross the board connecting common points to one another. The arrows do eventually come to an end, and the next day the whole routine begins again. For many Mrs. Pike's midterm was an event to be feared. Note card producers certainly made a profit. Making the answer sheet was almost as difficult as the exam. (There's no such thing as scantron when matching sections go from A to WW.) As difficult as Mrs. Pike's class was, these Juniors survived the year. They had learned more than just "Who wrote Moby Dick?" They had learned many lessons on life and will forever thank themselves and Mrs. Pike for Honors 11 English.

The Immortal Canker Worm

Skippy Hughes gives a thumbs-up. (Probably not because he passed an English quiz.)

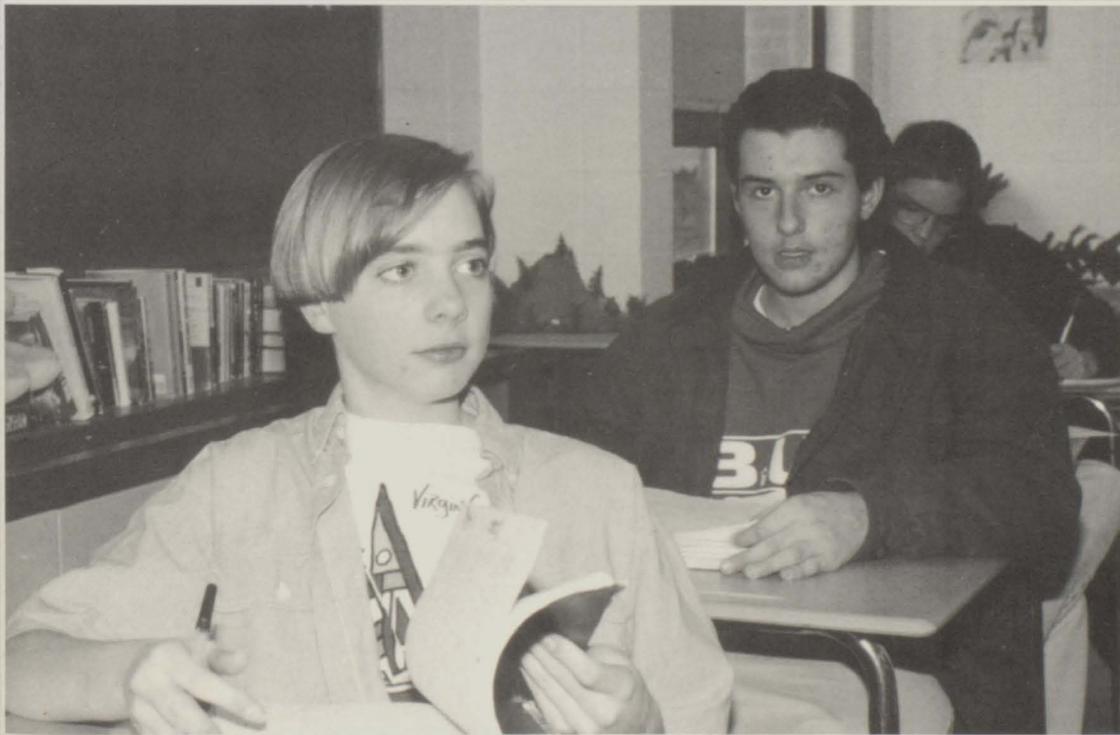

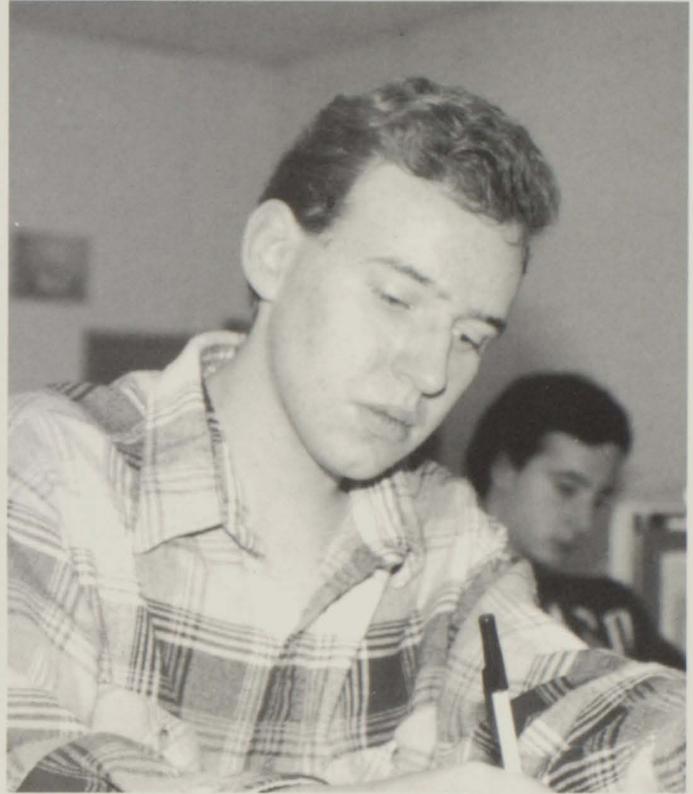

Mrs. Pike in action in room 129.

Michaela Thompson switches to a pencil after her pen has run out of ink.

Byron Dowling waves to an imaginary Captain Ahab and begs to be rescued from English class.

Nathan Horodysky is intently staring at his notebook and struggles to stay awake.

Tracey Boyd gazes at the board and wonders how long until lunch.

Pete Valois flips through his notebook and is puzzled by its fullness. So much for saving the trees.

Margaret Dunning is helping Miss Schwab monitor the class. She's thinking, "Soon this class will be mine!"

Amey Fregeolle laughs at the chemistry test placed before her, "Is it too early for April fools?"

Michaela Wadbrook gives a sigh of relief after completing a difficult test.

Rachel Cahoon and Byron Dowling smile and say, "I know something you don't know!"

Jeff Moore says, "Maybe if I smile and look intelligent she won't call on me."

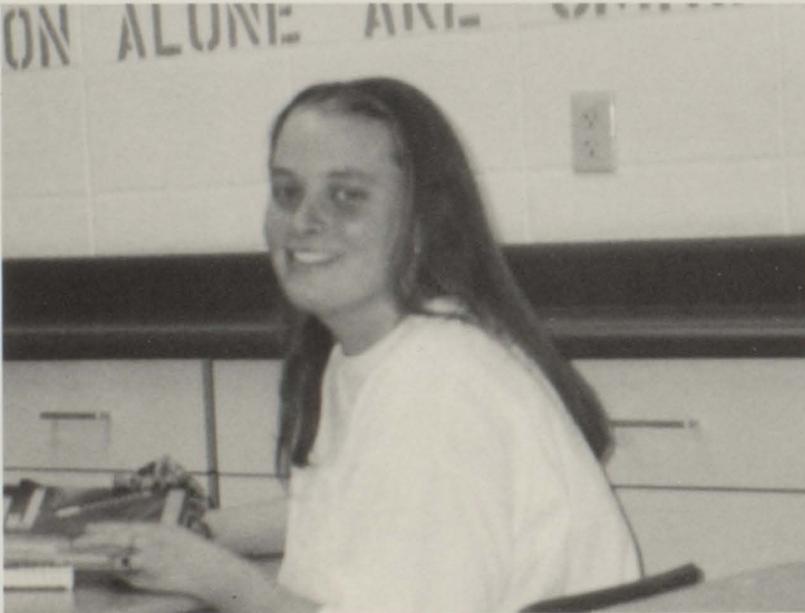

Amanda Ascione finds the teacher's anecdote amusing.

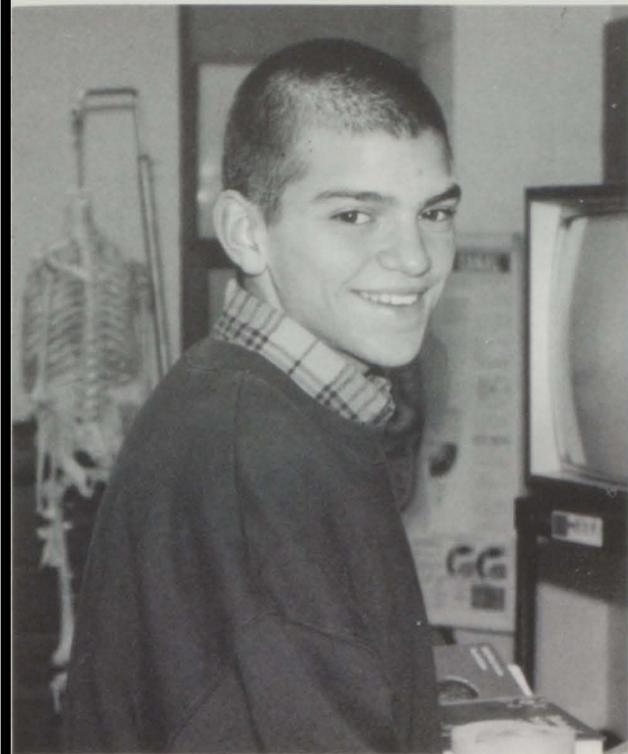

Scott Pinocci competently prepares to start an ever-exciting chemistry lab.

Q Whose face would you put on a one dollar bill?
A Julie Doucette said: "A Cow."

Most people wanted their own face on the bill. Many movie stars were included: Brad Pitt, Dean Cain, Howard Stern, Alvin and the Chipmunks (we did ask for one face) and Kelly Slater. The ever popular Mr. Whetstine (Mr. Potato Head) was also a common response. The only politician suggested was Newt Gingrich. I guess we are a conservative school.

Replies included: flamingo, because they can sleep on one leg; birds, because they can fly away; zebras, because they have stripes; cheetah, because they can run fast. Others included deer, butterfly, chicken, dolphin, gnu, and the potato. Some sophomores mixed their vegetables with their animals.

- The World of History According to

Mr. Whetstine

Nothing could be more fun than a fifty minute class in Mr. Whetstine's history world. For those few that are lucky enough to receive Mr. Whetstine as a teacher, the year is bound to be interesting. Whether he is teaching them about the Crusades or the Constitution, Mr. Whetstine always comes up with some interesting way to make his students learn. He uses case examples to teach certain points and many students have lawsuits out against him for negligible actions resulting in the death of ducklings. The student assigned to be the election reporter must be sure to always have his precious history book ready to be inspected at a moment's notice. Lectures may be frequently interrupted in order to settle a point of fashion or obtain an opinion from

Mr. Whetstine on a current issue. Political leaders never die in Mr. Whetstine's class. They just have bad days. Students also learn the fine art of critiquing potatoes. What would a day be without the friendly chats with Mr. Potato Head? Everyone's favorite times are squiggle days. On squiggle days students get to put an end to one lesson and start a new one. Without squiggles they would be lost. Mr. Whetstine is one of those teachers that knows how to take a joke. But beware! He often counters with one ten times better! History with Mr. Whetstine is never dull. His students learn to leap educational hurdles, and often he makes those students leap the real hurdles in the hallways.

The Immortal Canker Worm

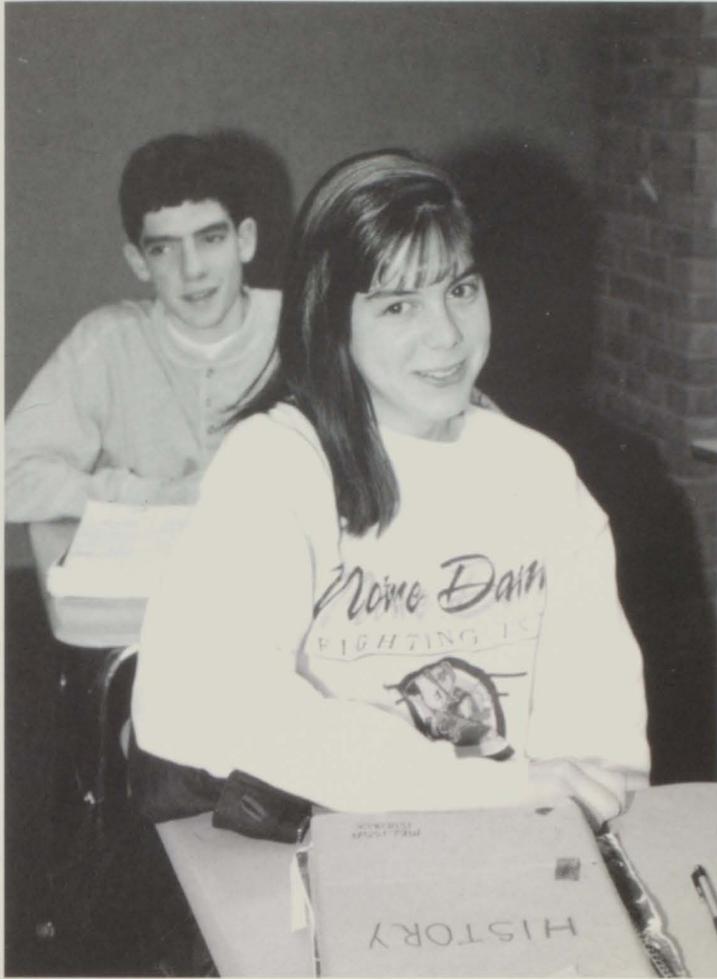

Mr. Whetstine is in the process of explaining some incredibly important history stuff to his class.

Karen Saenko waits attentively for class to begin.

Joe Roch spins around and says "Okay, whoever threw that pen is in big trouble. It was you!"

Melissa Giroux says, "You couldn't possibly think that I know the answer."

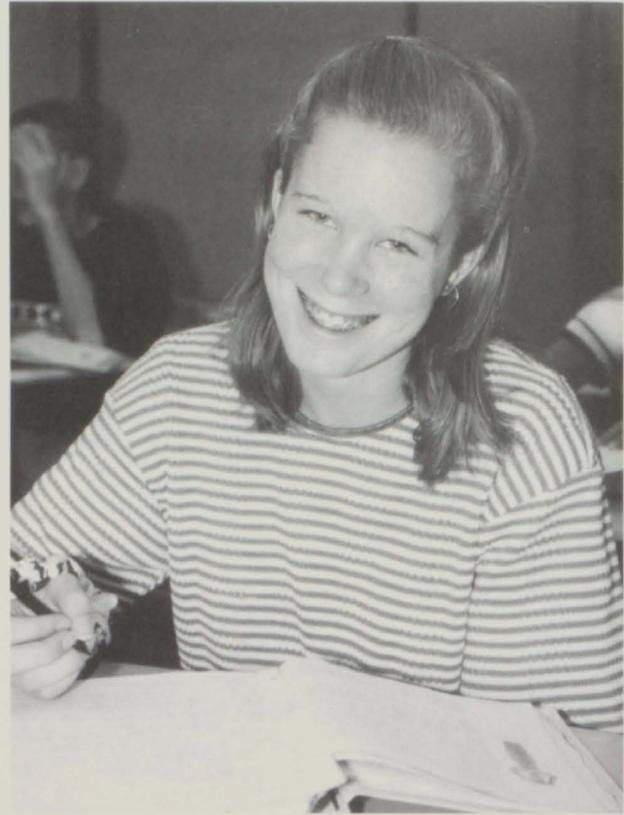

Casey Slezak relaxes against the wall and wonders, "Why am I here? They're having a pasta bar at lunch and I'm missing it."

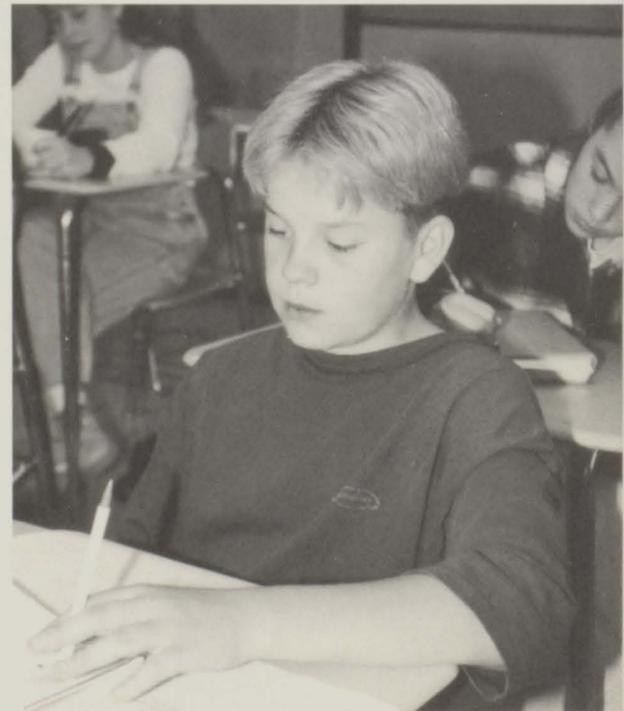

Kasey Lynch smiles at one of Mr. Whetstines "clever" puns.

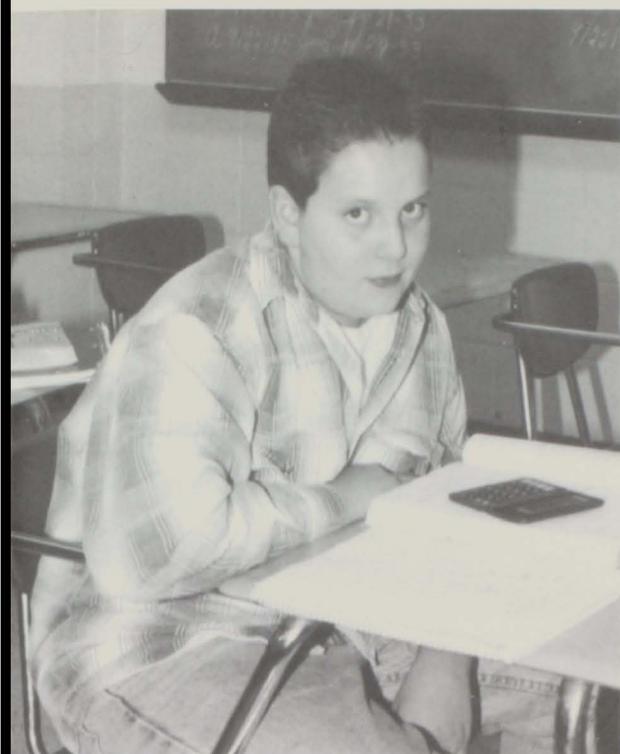

Meenal Balar smirks about her great comeback to one of Mr. Whetstine's jokes.

Q What is your favorite place in Monopoly?

A Kim Grundy said: "Free Parking."

Free Parking was the most popular choice among the freshmen. Followed by "Go because you collect money every time you go by," "Jail. If you're in jail you can sit back and let the bucks roll in," and "St. James Place," (Who would want to land on that?) Then there was the new place on Monopoly: home.
